19TH MARCH RAID BLASTS AT NAZIS

LONDON, March 24 (AP)—American heavy bombers drove into Germany for the third, straight day today, bombing military targets in western Germany, a United States communique announced, following strong RAF night blows at objectives in France.

While Flying Fortresses smashed into Germany to the accompaniment of the German warning service, "aechtung, taffention) achtung! strong enemy bomber formations flying over western Germany." Liberators bombed enemy airfields in northeastern France.

Record of Attacks

These attacks raised to 19—a new high record—the number of attacks in a single month. Fourteen of the attacks in March were directed against targets in Germany. The previous high for operational missions was 18 in February.

As on yesterday when a six-prong assault was made on railroad yards, aircraft stations and other objectives in western Germany, the heavy bombers today were escorted by strong formations of Lightning, Thunderbolt and Mustang fighters.

RAF heavies, bombing objectives around the industrial city of Lyon in southern France and the railroad yards of Laon, 80 miles northeast of Paris, last night brought the total allied air forces over Germany and occupied territory in 36 hours to between 5,000 and 6,000 planes, it was estimated. Bomb tonnage for that period was boosted to around 7,000.

35 Planes Lost

Two RAF planes were lost last night in operations which included Mosquito raids at the Rhineland communications center of Dortmund, and minelaying missions.

The United States air forces announced that 61 enemy aircraft were knocked down in yesterday's blasting of six targets in Germany. Thirty-nine of these were accounted for by the Fortresses and Liberators and 22 by the Thunderbolt, Lightning and Mustang escort.

The Americans lost 27 heavy bombers and six fighters.

20 Soldiers Lost In Raft Accident

WITH THE SECOND ARMY ON MANEUVERS, Somewhere in Tennessee, March 24 (AP)—High waters of the Cumberland and Tennessee today hampered efforts of searching parties to locate approximately 20 soldiers missing since an army raft capsized during an attempted river crossing early Thursday, army officials said.

The raft carried about 22 men, of whom at least two made their way to shore, and the army officials said others might find their way back to their outfit.

Former Mayor of Boise, 80, Passes

BOISE, March 24 (U.P.) — Arthur Hodges, 80, who served as mayor of Boise from 1912 to 1915, was found dead at his residence late yesterday.

Coroner William McBratney said he had died of a heart attack while sleeping. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. G. S. Wright, McMinnville, Ore.

FR Asks Open Door in Europe, Asia for Oppression Victims

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt, reaffirming the intention of America to aid the escape of refugees marked for death by the enemy, proposed a statement today that the free peoples of Europe and Asia temporarily open their frontiers to victims of oppression.

The chief executive also told a press-radio conference in a separate statement that America would fulfill its pledge for independence of the Philippines.

He remarked to reporters that he had quite a bit to offer today on foreign policy, and he spoke in sarcastic vein of those who, he said, had asserted that this country lacked such a policy.

Reads Paragraph

Reading the initial paragraph of his statement on refugees, he said it was a very good answer to some people who are wandering around asking bell-hops whether we have a foreign policy. The paragraph said:

"The United Nations are fighting to make a world in which tyranny and aggression cannot exist, a world based upon freedom, equality and justice; a world in which all persons regardless of race, color or creed, may live in peace, honor and dignity."

Speaking a bit later of persons threatened with annihilation as "Hitler's forces descend more heavily upon these lands" in the Balkans, the President asserted that it was "fitting that we should again proclaim our determination that none who participate in these acts of savagery shall go unpunished." That is more foreign policy, he commented.

Gives Formal Statement

On the matter of Philippine independence, the chief executive issued a formal statement acknowledging that today is the 10th anniversary of passage of the Tydings-McDuffie act providing for Philippine independence. That measure was a manifestation of a long existent American-Filipino friendship, Mr. Roosevelt said.

On the matter of nations in Europe and Asia admitting refugees, the President was asked whether this country also would open its doors.

The President said that we were not yet bringing any here, since there were not enough to come, but there were many refugees who have reached a haven in north Africa.

'Twas Chilly, Says Tom

Tom, the Cat, Has Close Call: Locked in Plant Refrigerator

By PAT PALMER

"Tom," a purr-Persian cat and permanent fixture at the Pacific Fruit warehouse, came near to losing one of his nine lives. Very near, in fact.

He was accidentally locked in the refrigerator rooms of the storage plant, according to Roy King, warehouse manager and owner of Tom.

Pipes were being defrosted—and Tom, thoroughly familiar with the place, wandered in to see (we think) the type of lemons available this week for his Friday fish ration.

But suddenly the striped overalls clumped out, closing the door behind them. Momentarily nonplussed, Tom browsed about until it became unbearably cold. And then, alarmed at last, he sought frantically to escape.

He climbed along the slender coils of pipe, thinking he might find a trap door or transom. But those pipes grew increasingly colder—and one of his paws stuck—and then another.

He was beginning to lose feeling. Half-forgotten memories of warm stoves and half-empty cans of mackerel flashed through his mind (we think).

And then the big door opened and striped overalls came quickly to his rescue. But the type of first aid administered didn't add to his comfort, for he was thoroughly doused with cold water. And at last those paws were free from the frozen pipes.

In an hour or so Tom felt quite himself. But from now on, when he goes to the refrigerator rooms, Tom says (we think) he'll be out before the striped overalls.

Reds Take 400 Towns In Ukraine Advance

LONDON, March 24 (U.P.)—Premier Josef Stalin announced tonight that the first army of the Ukraine, plunging forward 37 to 62 miles on the Tarnopol-Proskurov front, had captured more than 400 towns and villages.

Storming southward toward Rumania in the region of the prewar Polish frontier, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's troops were reported to have captured Zaleschiki, 63 miles south of Tarnopol, Chertkov, 38 south of Tarnopol and 17 miles from the Dniester, and Gusyatin, 43 miles southeast.

Only yesterday Moscow revealed that Zhukov's army had gone into action along a 65-mile front between Tarnopol and Proskurov, scoring advances up to 37 miles in three days of fighting.

Stalin's order tonight covered and extended the offensive, reporting widespread additional gains in the push toward the upper Dniester.

"Troops of the first Ukrainian front, having repulsed all counter-attacks on the Tarnopol-Proskurov sector and having in these battles worn out attacking German tank and infantry divisions, several days ago, themselves took the offensive unexpectedly for the enemy and broke the enemy's front," Stalin said.

The order of the day was addressed to Zhukov, and ordered his triumphant troops saluted by Moscow's victory guns tonight.

Boris Polevoy, war correspondent in Bessarabia, wired Pravda that the Germans and Rumanians were fleeing in full confusion, abandoning rifles and machine guns.

Farther north Marshal Zhukov's three-day-old drive, which has liberated 200 populated points in a 35-mile advance, took his forces into the heart of the communications area controlling Lvov's connec-

Volcano Eruption Slowly Subsiding

POMPEII, March 24 (U.P.)—Vesuvius still spouted smoke and ashes 20,000 feet in the air today but the lava flows subsided sufficiently to permit evacuees to return to some of the previously threatened area.

Some residents returned to Cercola. Officials still stood ready to evacuate Torre Del Greco and Torre Annunziata, both of which were digging out from a two foot deposit of gravel-like ash.

Man Found Dead In Jail at Hailey

HAILEY, March 24 — Charles Benjamin Bates, age and address unknown, was found dead in the Blaine county jail yesterday by Jailer Fred Miller when he brought the man's breakfast. He had been dead for several hours.

Bates was arrested in Carey Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Frank Inman on a charge of being intoxicated and disorderly. He had been treated by County Physician Dr. Robert H. Wright several times during the two nights and a day he was in the jail.

A draft card showed he had registered at North Avondale, Colo. Sheriff L. E. Outzs has wired authorities there in an attempt to learn the man's home.

CAPTAINS KILLED AS PLANES CRASH IN PACIFIC, AFRICA

Two Magic Valley captains—one a marine flier and the other an army air corps pilot who was formerly in the royal Canadian air force—died in line of duty as their planes crashed in such widely separated war theaters as the south Pacific and north Africa.

The army pilot was Capt. Giles Casey, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Casey, Twin Falls. The marine flier was Capt. Judd Zera Harris, husband of the former Betty Perkins, Murtaugh.

KILLED IN AFRICA

Capt. Giles Casey, 31, a graduate of Twin Falls high school, who began his training in the Canadian air force, was killed in an airplane crash in north Africa, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Casey.

Captain Casey enlisted in the Royal Canadian air force before the United States entered the war, and received training at Edmonton and Macleod, Canada, airfields. In May, 1942, he transferred to the U. S. army air forces, and in August of that year received his commission at Stockton field, Calif.

The captain's death was confirmed by the Red Cross, but no details of the fatal accident were given, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Casey.

Captain Casey was the husband of Mrs. Betty Perkins Harris, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L.

IN PACIFIC AREA

MURTAUGH, March 24 — Capt. Judd Zera Harris was killed in a plane crash somewhere in the south Pacific, according to word from the navy department.

Captain Harris was the husband of Mrs. Betty Perkins Harris, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L.

Nazis Speed Troops Into Balkan Area

LONDON, March 24 (U.P.)—German forces were reported today to be in Bulgaria completing occupation of the nazi satellite states in southeastern Europe.

With Hungary already under control, 100,000 more Germans were said, in an Ankara dispatch, to have pushed 50,000 troops across the Rumanian frontier in addition to strong garrisons, railways, and other strategic points, while SS troops from Vienna reportedly were occupying strategic points in Slovakia.

An Ankara report to the Daily Herald added that every Bulgarian and Rumanian city on the Black sea was under German control, together with all transport facilities on the Danube from Budapest to Galatz, only a few miles from where the river empties into the Black sea.

While the Germans desperately were attempting to reorganize their Balkan setup in the face of Soviet pressure from the northeast, various sources said, Turkey was countering some difficulty in Rumania.

London newspapers said that general mobilization has been started in Rumania as the German troops were reported crossing the border from occupied Hungary.

Solons "Pleased" At Albion Normal

ALBION, March 24 — Hyrum Lewis Castle county state representative; Vern Thorpe, Jerome county state senator; Tom Bell, Minidoka county representative, and Charles Whittaker, Rupert, chairman of the Idaho Educational council and Idaho Trustees' association, said they were "very much pleased" after a tour of Albion State Normal school Wednesday.

The lawmakers and Mr. Whittaker expressed satisfaction with the school's efforts to adjust its program to wartime conditions.

Mr. Castle, however, was sharply critical of the state board of education for continuing Albion operation with small enrollment.

President R. H. Snyder and Bursar C. E. Somonsen escorted the visitors on the tour.

Draft Looms for Most Men 18-25

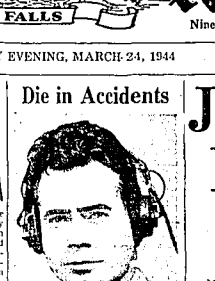
WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) The "grim reality" of most civilians 18 through 25 are virtually on their way to a fighting war, unless they work on a farm or can't pass a physical test.

That became increasingly apparent today despite all the uproar over drafting key technicians in industry. Only a comparative handful of men under 26 are likely to be deferred much longer.

The others are wanted for combat duty. The President has ordered it and all government agencies have accepted it.

But officials estimate that 30 to 40 per cent of the under-26 men who are called will fail to meet physical standards and will go into 4-F, most of them to return to their essential jobs.

Die in Accidents



CAPT. GILES CASEY

PVT. HARRY J. McDONALD

CAPT. JUDD Z. HARRIS

These three Magic Valley men were dead today in line of duty as result of military accidents in widely scattered parts of the world. FLASHES of LIFE

CATCH

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 24 —The dragger Mary C came to port here recently with the strangest "catch" of its career—a 125-pound aerial torpedo tumbled with which fishermen Patsy Canerota and John Pall said became entangled in their net while dragging for flatfish four miles out in Long Island sound.

MUSIC

GALLUP, N. M., March 24—Charles Kasining sold a player piano to a Navajo Indian, but the door to the Indian's mud and log hogan was too small to get it inside.

"Put the piano on the ground and build a new hogan around it," suggested Kasining.

The Indian did, and the piano now is the envy of the tribesmen near Chilles, Ariz., in the heart of the Navajo hinterlands.

PET

OMAHA, March 24—Ted Miller, apartment house proprietor, who has had arguments about cats, dogs and children, took down his "no dogs allowed" sign and changed it to "no dogs or calves allowed."

A few days ago a young couple who had engaged an apartment from him tried to take a calf into their living quarters, he said.

WAITING

CHICAGO, March 24—Eli Mark, a zoo-keeper, had a .750 record for his obstetrical forecasts for Bebe, a hippopotamus. Three out of four times he was accurate in predicting the date of birth for Bebe's calves.

But Mark's point record now could stand revision.

In mid-February he said that Bebe was expectant again and that her fifth calf should arrive "any day." The calf has not been born yet.

Japs Invade India; Forces Threatening Capital of Manipur

By DARRELL BERRIGAN

NEW DELHI, March 24 (UP)—Japanese spearheads invading India have driven to within 30 miles of Imphal, capital of Manipur state, but still are in the high mountain jungles and have not yet dropped into the Imphal valley, a southeast Asia headquarters spokesman disclosed today.

Enemy columns are scattered over a 180-mile front in the Tiddim-Tamu-Imphal area and have cut the road between Imphal and Tiddim, but superior British forces behind the roadblock and north of it are closing a pincer on the Japanese there, he said.

The road apparently was cut about 17 miles north of Tiddim, inside the Burmese border. Today's communique announced that the British and Indian forces had driven the invaders from three positions covering this highway.

North of the Tiddim road fighting, British forces have closed in on one of the main Japanese positions, repulsing an enemy counter-attack with "considerable losses," the communique said.

Japs Near Tamu

The headquarters spokesman said the Japanese are also had moved into the hills north of the border town of Tamu but had been prevented thus far from taking up positions on the road from Tamu to Palel, 22 miles south of Imphal, which links the Manipur capital with the Kabaw valley in Burma.

Small parties of Japanese are approaching this road, but one of these detachments was dispersed Tuesday morning and another made an unsuccessful attack on a British unit on the highway, the communique reported.

(A BBC broadcast recorded by CBS quoted an Assam province government announcement that enemy air attacks had been made on Manipur and the Kaichali district to the west of Manipur but are only a few bombs were dropped and casualties were slight.)

700 Nips Slain

British and Indian forces have killed 600 to 700 Japanese in the recent fighting in the Chin hills and the Kabaw valley while their own losses have been "infinitely lighter," the spokesman said.

He gave little information regarding a Japanese column marching through the rugged mountains from Tamanthi toward the Imphal-Ukhrul road, but said the enemy [illegible] of Imphal.

British forces appear stronger than the Japanese in the Arakan and the allies have definite air superiority, both for attack and supply, the spokesman said.

Allied air forces struck at the enemy's communications in central and southern Burma yesterday and Wednesday and dumps in the Myitkyina and Mogaung areas from which the invading columns are supplied.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's American-trained Chinese forces driving southward from the Kumon range in the Mogaung valley have repulsed three counter-attacks in their advance.

Invasion Nearing, Churchill Tells U. S. Troops in England

LONDON, March 23 (Delayed) (AP) —Prime Minister Churchill paid a surprise visit to American air-borne troops in the English countryside today and in a vein of deep feeling told them they "soon will have the opportunity of landing upon the soil of man-trampled Europe."

Termed World Cause

"It is a world cause because, though no one can tell how the future of the world will shape itself, we are determined that the dark tyrannies which have overclouded our lives and drawn our people from their homes shall be broken and battered down, and that an example shall be made of the guilty which will prevent such tyrannies from being erected again upon the ruasses of the people."

It was Churchill's first inspection visit to an all-American unit and the prime minister, in a jovial mood and showing the keenest interest in all the complicated paraphernalia of the American air-borne equipment, paused repeatedly to talk with the men from overseas.

"I thank God you are here," he said, "and from the bottom of my heart I wish you all good fortune and success."

In company with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, senior commander of American ground forces in the United Kingdom, and Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the U. S. ninth air force, the prime minister witnessed the colorful spectacle of many hundreds of American skytroops leaping from swittrolling waves of planes on to the green English fields a few hundred yards from the reviewing stand.

Great Part to Play

"You have a great part to play," Churchill told them. "You are specially trained. You are the most modern expression of war.

"It is with feelings of profound encouragement that I have the honor to review you here today. In three weeks which are passing so swiftly I see gathered here on English soil these soldiers, specially trained, of our great American ally preparing themselves to strike a blow for a greater cause than either of our two countries have ever fought for in bygone days," Churchill continued as the masses of eager, battle-helmeted paratroopers gathered around him.

Battles for Cassino Rage Under Big Guns

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, March 24 (U.P.) — Allied and German field guns threw a curtain of steel across the ruins of Cassino today while opposing ground troops inside the town battled through a blinding cloud of smoke and dust tossed up by the cannonading.

An allied communique reported tersely that "very heavy fighting continues in Cassino," and headquarters spokesmen indicated that New Zealand infantrymen were making little, if any, progress in their drive to clear the Germans from a group of ruined buildings in the southwestern edge of the town.

They revealed, however, that allied tanks had moved into point-blank range of the nazi positions and opened with their big 75-millimeter cannon.

Simultaneously, American 240-millimeter field guns, the biggest cannon in the allied arsenal, hurled tons of high explosives into the German emplacements along the slopes of Mount Cassino and around the ancient Roman amphitheater just south and west of the town.

Tanks Support Troops

New Zealand units, supported heavily by tanks and shellfire, renewed their assault on enemy strongpoints below Castle hill, beyond the western outskirts of Cassino, and were reported to have made "some little progress" yesterday.

The Germans were believed to have suffered heavy casualties in the fighting around Castle hill and in a series of futile attacks against the allied positions farther north.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill said during a visit to an American base in England yesterday that American and British troops are "locked fiercely" at Cassino and on

NAZIS ENSLAVE ITALIAN WORKERS

BERN, March 23—(Delayed)—(AP) —At least 1,000,000 Italian men and women have been carried through the Brenner pass during the past four and one-half months to man machines in the German war industry, says Avanti, underground Italian newspaper.

The report from the frying pan of nazi-occupied Italy to the reich's war plants under fire from allied bombs apparently is continuing in Milan, Turin and other industrial areas, impelled—judging from announcements in the fascist press itself—by the lack of food and work in Italy.

The German practice of stripping Italian factories of their machinery and war materials presumably is a factor compelling Italian workmen to get in line. There are indications that the Germans more and more are abandoning their plans to use Italian factories in favor of removing able-bodied workers to Germany.

Nelson Approves Limited Work Act

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — Donald M. Nelson, the nation's war production boss, today expressed favor for a "limited" national service act.

Such an act, he told the house military committee, would be preferable to broad national service legislation and, he said, would go a long way toward solving the manpower problem.

Testifying before the committee, which is investigating draft deferment policies, Nelson voiced the view that "the time has passed" for general national service. He added that "earlier in the game" he had favored a broad act.

No Sugar Increase

WASHINGTON, March 24 (U.P.)— Civilian hopes for a possible increase in 1944 sugar rations were dashed today as the war food administration announced there was "no improvement" in the tight sugar situation. As of now, civilians are scheduled to get six per cent less sugar than in 1943.

32 SHIPS IN NIP CONVOY ARE SUNK

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, March 24 (U.P.)— Allied bombers sank two Japanese freighters, seven coastal vessels and 23 barges in the past week-end day, smashing the third enemy attempt in four days to reinforce its heavily isolated base on the northern New Guinea coast, it was announced today.

In the attacks, the allied airmen destroyed a total of 18 Japanese vessels, including one destroyer and three corvettes, and severely damaged another destroyer together with three supply ships.

Heavy medium and light bombers followed up the latest shipping raid with a series of assaults along the New Guinea coast from Cape Moem, at Wewak, to Aitape, 90 miles to the northwest. Defense installations, supply and bivouac areas were hit with approximately 200 tons of explosives, a communique said, and eight heavy gun positions were destroyed or seriously damaged. Numerous parked planes also were destroyed.

One allied plane was lost, apparently from anti-aircraft fire, as the communique said the Japanese failed to put up an aerial opposition.

In the isolated Bismarck archipelago, Solomons and torpedo dive-bombers carried out a midday attack on Rabaul, dropping 38 tons of explosives on Vunakanau airdrome, while several bombed miles to the east of the Solomons, light bombers and naval units bombarded enemy positions around the Torokina perimeter on Bougainville.

TANKS LEAD YANK CASSINO ATTACKS

the fifth army beachhead below Rome.)

Nazi artillery pounded repeatedly at allied bridges across the Rapido and at French positions near Portelia and Castellone, north of Cassino.

Front reports said the main enemy positions in and around Cassino comprised six strongpoints: The Hotel Des Roses in the southwest part of the town; just off the Via Casilina, the Hotel Continental about three blocks to the northwest; the so-called duke's palace on the Via Casilina, where the road turns westward toward Rome, the colosseum, midway between the palace and the Hotel Des Roses, the Roman amphitheater, and a yellow building just west of Cassino, about 300 yards from the allied field Castle hill.

Allies Beaten off

From these positions the nazis have been able to hold off all allied attacks and at the same time have managed to infiltrate snipers behind the allied lines frequently shooting the New Zealanders between two fires.

Headquarters sources indicated the allies would have to reduce these strong points one by one in the bitterest kind of close quarters fighting.

United Press War Correspondent James E. Roper reported that two or three more German tanks were broken into Cassino and were emplaced around the Continental hotel. Six other nazi tanks were spotted and shelled on the road south of the town, but there was no word on the results of the bombardment.

Patrols Clash

Heavy artillery exchanges and patrol clashes continued on the Anzio beachhead and on the British eighth army front, but there was no important change in the opposing battle lines.

German aerial activity over the Cassino area died away completely yesterday after a brief flurry Wednesday when about 40 enemy planes bombed and strafed the allied lines, losing seven planes.

Allied fighter-bombers struck hard at German positions around Cassino, however, while American Marauders blasted the Campidi Marte freight yards at Florence

Truck Stoppage 'Unchanged' Here

Conditions in the truck work stoppage Friday remained "unchanged," according to reports from the office of Consolidated Freightways and Garrett Freightlines, where trucks have been tied up since last week-end.

Government freight was said to be moving, and the belief was expressed that negotiations in Boise might result in resumption of all hauling by Saturday or Sunday.

JOAN DESCRIBES CHAPLIN AFFAIR

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

HOLLYWOOD, March 24 (UP) — An embarrassed Joan Barry recited her story of intimacies with Charlie Chaplin here and in New York under cross-examination today and was forced to admit she spent one evening with him with a gun in her hand, which she put down only while the multi-millionaire comic embraced her.

Jerry Giesler, the portly attorney defending the British-born Chaplin on Mann act charges, sought to break down her story of high life in New York's gilded spots and to make her admit "friendships" with other men.

He ran into bitter objections on the part of Prosecutor Charles H. Carr, when he attempted to get the comedian thusly. Miss Barry began to tell about a trip he said she made to Tulsa, Okla., to get money after Chaplin had dropped her from his payroll.

Demanded Facts

Giesler dropped all pretense at delicacy in his questioning, and demanded to know about Barry's intimacy she claimed to have had with Chaplin.

Only after an hour of withering examination did Miss Barry begin to lose the unruffled composure she had as she entered.

Giesler started his day's questioning by asking her if David Heck, a New York lawyer, wasn't the man who accompanied her on the train ride on Oct. 16, 1942 at the time she met Chaplin for the first time since leaving Hollywood Oct. 2.

She agreed Heck, a Mr. Flamm and another woman had made up the Stork club party.

"Was anyone else later didn't you call and ask if you could see Mr. Chaplin?" Giesler asked.

Explanation Denied

"Yes—may I explain?" Miss Barry replied.

"No," Giesler said, and Judge O'Connor supported him.

Three days later, Miss Barry said, she accompanied Chaplin and Tim Durant, the actor's friend, to the 21 club and El Morocco. It was after this party, she said, that Chaplin invited her to his hotel because "we had some things to talk over."

Are you sure you're not the one who made the suggestion?" Giesler inquired.

"No, I did not," she said.

Under further cross-examination Miss Barry said she returned to Hollywood and remained for a month before going to Tulsa, Okla., about Nov. 27, 1942. She said she remained in Oklahoma city until about Nov. 23.

Then she added she returned to Hollywood and remained for a week in November that he never wanted to see her again but that she exchanged a few words with him when she passed his table the following month at the Players club, a favorite rendezvous for actors in the city.

"Chaplin did not ask you at that time to come home with him?"

"No—but we got the feeling that each one of us knew when the other wanted to see each other."

Gun Incident Told

Giesler objected violently to this answer, and Judge O'Connor sustained him and ordered it stricken.

Miss Barry said that she had purchased a gun the day before she broke a window to gain entrance to the Chaplin hilltop mansion shortly after midnight on Dec. 23.

Miss Barry admitted discussing money matters the next day, saying she wanted to "get" a car, but her back under contract. She finally gave Chaplin the gun.

She said she returned to his house Dec. 30 to "get the $25 a week he had promised" to give her for her support.

This Smiling Marine, Deadly Gunner, Mowed Down 50 Japs

* * * *

Downed 50 Japs

PFC. ROCCO J. LANGONE

. . . Now at Sun Valley naval convalescent hospital, this New York-born marine machine gunner mowed down the Japs in the Piva village battle in the Bougainville campaign. (Official U.S. Navy Photo-Staff Engraving)

SUN VALLEY, March 24—Step up and meet a young American who looks just like all the other smiling Yanks of Italian descent.

More than 50 Japs—if they could speak from the hulls of their ancestors—could tell you that this smiling youth is proof positive that they guessed wrong when he decided Americans were too flabby to fight.

Toughest Combat

The youth is Marine Pfc. Rocco J. Langone, now at the U. S. naval convalescent hospital. A veteran of the toughest kind of combat, he has been recommended for high honors. The way in which he killed some 50 Japs on Bougainville island brought him that recommendation. He wears the Asiatic-Pacific campaign ribbon with three stars, American theater ribbon and the presidential unit citation with one star.

On Nov. 1, 1943, the headlines read "Third Marine Division Established Beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay, Bougainville." From the shores of the beachhead defense that the Japs had formed to the rim of the mountains of the central part of the island fought the third. Through muck, quicksand and impenetrable swamp they fought. With the mud running over their knees and as high as their necks, these marines fought an engagement that wrought havoc among the nipponese garrisons on the island. The engagement at Piva village will go down as one of the bloodiest of the war.

The Fight

At this engagement where the nips were dug in with a defensive depth of 500 yards, Langone was ordered to replace his machine gun and open fire. After the crossing of the river was made, Langone and his squad was ordered out on patrol against a scanty group of Japs that had entrenched themselves well back of the frontal line of action, but in a direct threat to the entire marine assault line.

Worming their way through the jungle growth they were met by marine scouts who informed them of a small enemy concentration some yards ahead. Taking advantage of this information, two squads one under Langone and one under a Private Varadi, advanced soon to find themselves only 30 yards from a reinforced Japanese regiment that was lined up for "chow."

Gun Jammed

Mounting their guns they opened fire. Varadi killing 18 of the enemy before his gun jammed. Langone stopped firing his gun praised Varadi for Varadi's emplacement to help in the placing of his gun into working operation and then swung his gun over to Langone's gun to keep a rain of fire upon the enemy. When Varadi's gun was back in operation, and Langone again charged positions, each returning to his gun and to resume dealing out death to the enemy. A Jap operating a Nambu was soon put out of action by Varadi, while Langone killed some 80 of the enemy.

With support in operation with them, the two gunners discovered that they had penetrated unknowingly some 200 yards behind the enemy lines. Facing an entire reinforced regiment, they decided to pick up their weapons and try to make it back to their lines as best as they could. Crushing the vegetation beneath them as they crawled, through the thickest parts, they made their way back safely.

Private Langone is a native of Marlboro, N. Y., and received his high school education in Newark, N. J. He joined the marines May 1, 1942.

tions with the lower Ukraine, the Russians said.

Tarnopol Outflanked

This strong push by the first Ukrainian army also outflanked Tarnopol, front dispatches reported, and left the twin German defense bastion of Proskurov to the east within the red army's sallent. It appeared, these dispatches indicated, that the German counteroffensive in this sector has been broken and that immediate withdrawal or destruction faces Field Marshal von Manstein's axis armies.

A Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's third Ukrainian army was reported battling enemy troops in the outskirts of Voznesensk on the Bug river, 50 miles north of Nikolaev and 80 miles northwest of Odessa. Nikolaev was more closely threatened, frontline dispatches said, but a Russian thrust through the town of Bashtanovka, 10 miles to the north, and by other red army troops pressing the port's defenses five miles to the southeast.

Friends may view the body at the mortuary between the hours of 6 and 9 p. m. Friday. The casket will be unopened at funeral rites.

SHUTTLE BOMBING FLAYS JAP BASES

By MALCOLM R. JOHNSON
Former Times-News Reporter
(Representing the Combined U. S. Press)

ADVANCED SEVENTH ARMY AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS, CENTRAL PACIFIC, March 20 (Delayed) (UP)—Shuttle bombing by the seventh airforce bombing command—a new technique in central Pacific air war—must be leaving the isolated Japanese garrisons in the Marshalls groggy.

The seventh's bombers have been shuttling back and forth over the remaining enemy bases in the Marshalls since Feb 25.

Brig. Gen. T. H. Landon, commanding general of the seventh's bomber command, said the technique increased the efficiency of U. S. planes 100 per cent, enabling them to carry twice the bomb load on the same amount of gasoline.

While standing in front of his "folle," (native thatched hut), the blond cigar-smoking general explained that acquisition of new bases through the Marshalls' invasion permitted the new method of attack.

"We hit the Japs coming and going," he said. "Our bombers, largely B-25s in these operations, leave the Gilberts' field with full gasoline tanks and bomb loads. They attack the Jap bases en route to the Marshalls and get new bombloads and hit the Japs again on the way home. No more gasoline is used than on previous round trips when we did not have bases in the Marshalls."

FLIERS REACT TO GOOD BOMB RAIDS

By KENNETH L. DIXON

U. S. AIRBASE IN SARDINIA, March 15—(Delayed) — (AP) — Spend five minutes in the mess hall of any squadron at evening and you'll know without being told whether it had a good day.

Yesterday this marauder squadron got fouled up over the target for the first time in weeks, scattered its bombs around quite a bit and even brought some of them back. It was a glum crowd that gathered here hat night to eat and sit by the fire.

But today was the Cassino bombing, and the boys went over in perfect formation, wheeling in as though over a field when the ground force "control tower" called their bombing turn, and every bomb was on the battered town.

Group Congratulated

On the bulletin board is a radio message from Maj. Gen. Joe Cannon saying that their timing and accuracy at Cassino was superb and conveying his congratulations to all the group.

But you wouldn't need that to know the boys did a good job today. There is banter and smart cracking all around. Paul Quinn is unlimbering his accordion and the boys are squealing over the tables for a song session.

Paul, a lieutenant and a Marauder pilot, is 23 and one of the most colorful of all this colorful crew. He has been everything from a Mormon minister to an orchestra trumpet player in Idaho and Wyoming. A native of Nampa, Ida., he flew his own ship overseas and sometimes used let the co-pilot take over, take his throat microphone to the squeeze box and play but give for the crew over the interphone.

A motley crew has gathered around now.

Once Was Reporter

There's Lieut. Don Oliver, 21, a bombardier from Richmond, Ind., who in his "childhood" was both a newspaper reporter and Fuller brush salesman.

There's Capt. John (Brulser) Young, 25, pilot of "Willie Junior," who comes from Caldwell, Ida., and got his nickname because he's only a sliver of a guy with a long face and a wide grin, strictly not the bruiser type. He used to be a farm boy.

The Brusser's co-pilot, Lieut. John M. Week, San Francisco, who used to work for a wholesale paper company, is contributing a couple of brand new parodies, singing their verses while the others join in on the chorus.

Quinn is pacing back and forth and someone has parked a tin cup on top of his accordion, so he shuts his eyes to carry out the blind beggar illusion.

DE VALERA SCENE DENIED IN PRESS

LONDON, March 24 —(AP)— The Irish Press, Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's Dublin newspaper, Thursday attacked an Associated Press account of what occurred when David Gray, the American minister, presented the note in which the United States asked for the closing of axis missions in Eire on the grounds of security.

In an editorial the paper took strong exception to a dispatch sent from Belfast, northern Ireland, by Correspondent Roger D. Greene on March 20 after an eight-day stay in Dublin during which he saw Gray several times.

The dispatch said it had been learned that when the American note was presented De Valera gave way to expressions of anger, thumped the table and shouted "this is an ultimatum."

Not Ultimatum

Gray, it continued, replied:

"If you will read the note again you will find there is no 'or else' clause and no time limit. It is not an ultimatum. It is only a sincere effort by the United States government to safeguard the lives of thousands of American soldiers from the very real danger of axis espionage agents in Eire."

After quoting this passage the Irish Press said:

"We do not know how to take this obviously distorted description. Recently Gray had occasion to deny statements attributed to him by a representative of the New York Times. These statements were also supposed to have been made in an interview at which only De Valera and Gray were present. In that case the New York Times representative purported to be merely paraphrasing what Gray said at this private talk. Gray contradicted this story as soon as it was brought to his notice. In the present case the Associated Press representative goes further. With apparent self-assurance he quotes what he claims to have been the exact words of Gray. If they were in fact the words that Gray used then this American could only have learned them from either De Valera or Gray.

Say No Reporters

"We learned that De Valera did not recently see any Associated Press representative and the hostile description of him in the alleged account of the interview emphasizes this. The only deduction which ordinary people will make unless this story is publicly contradicted is that Gray told the press man what purported to have passed in an interview with the head of our government. It is not possible to believe any such thing and we are certain that the American minister will protest strongly against this attribution to him of so grave a breach of confidence and etiquette."

Gray, in a letter to the Irish Press Thursday said:

"Your representative called me on the telephone yesterday evening, March 22, and read to me the extract from an article purporting to have been written by Roger Greene of the Associated Press. He asked me what comment I wish to make. I replied I had given no statement or interview to any press representative with reference to the matter in question and I was not interested in speculating as to why and upon what information Greene had written his article."

(Greene, traveling on assignment, was not immediately available for comment on his dispatch, the accuracy of which the Associated Press has no reason to doubt.)

DETAIL FOR TODAY

G-Man

To give his duty more dignity, the unfortunate member of the KP detail who is designated as chief dispenser of all garbage is known as a G-MAN. He has little rest while on the job because the army kitchen is a notorious collector of the stuff in question. A KP not a member in good standing of the G-MAN club until he trips on his way to the incinerator and displays his wares all over the company area. This calls for loud and lusty cheers from all spectators. It's the same cheer that goes up in the mess hall when a KP drops a dish. It is more essential for the G-MAN to have his bath after such a mishap than for any other member of the KP detail.

McKays Get 4th Letter from Son

HAILEY, March 23 Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McKay have received a fourth letter from their son, Rodney, since he was taken prisoner of war by the Japanese at the time the Philippines fell. His address had changed from Tokyo camp No. 1 to Tokyo camp No. 2 and the note read as follows:

"Dear folks: Hope you are all in good health. I feel fair. Hope you received the last letter I sent. I sure will be glad to get home and see everyone again. Be sure to remember me to everyone. I sure hope that all the family are doing well. Sorry that I can't write very much. Our space is limited Love to all. Rod."

The family has written many letters and a cablegram was sent him in July through the American Red Cross, but he has evidently received no word from home. This letter, however, has come through quicker than those previously received, having been written on Sept. 7, 1943. The first letter took 10 months to arrive; the second was delayed six eight months, and the third came through in seven months.

NEXT SUMMER, TOUGHEST YET

Responsible military authorities say we are approaching what will probably be the final summer of the war in Europe. If this is so, then we are also facing the war's most difficult summer. It will require extra effort from those at home.

Nowhere, according to present indications, will this extra effort be needed more than in food production. So before we become too immersed in post-war planning and political speculation, let's take a serious look at the prospects.

There are two chief difficulties among the predictable obstacles to raising still another record crop in 1944. One is the scarcity of labor. The other, confusion regarding future of price control and stabilization.

Solution of the second difficulty rests with congress and the President. Their task is complicated by the shortage of time, and by the hot political fight over the subsidy program.

Solution of the first problem rests with women and youths and men out of service. Last year women and boys and girls under 18 made up about 1,500,000 of the 3,500,000 supplementary workers. This year the department of agriculture estimates that this supplementary force will have to be 4,000,000. It has assigned to women and youngsters the task of making up the difference.

The implication in this is that the remaining 2,000,000 of last year's seasonal workers marked a peak figure, and that we cannot depend on getting more imported labor, war prisoners and furloughed soldiers to take up the slack.

It's a job for the ordinary civilian, and the need may be even greater than the agriculture department's estimate shows. For since the estimate was issued, draft deferments for farm workers have been tightened, and the agriculture labor force is now at a record low —4 per cent below the figure at the same time last year.

There is every indication that our annual food crop will have fewer producers and more consumers in 1944 than ever before. The armed forces' needs cannot be denied. An invasion of Europe will necessitate heavy replacements, and the liberation of half-starved Europeans will present another outlet for our food supply.

The only solution seems to be for more women and children to continue the excellent job done last year, for more businessmen within reach of farms to give an afternoon or full day, whenever possible, for more vacationers to take a holiday of agricultural work.

All this and victory gardens too can turn the trick.

"DEAD" CASSINO COMES TO LIFE

Thursday morning, March 16, news came from abroad that the "allies had destroyed Cassino, and a new all-out drive on Rome was under way."

Official photographs showed that "no buildings remained after the attack."

Air force officials said that "bombers were raining explosives on towns, bridges and communications centers to the north and northwest of Cassino—places where the nazis might attempt to make their next stand."

An eye-witness reported: "Cassino is dead: It no longer exists as a fortification barring the road to Rome. There still are walls standing and there may even be Germans still alive, but the grand German fortress on the road to Rome has been wrecked."

As one general put it: "It is impossible to see how there could be a living thing left there."

Following, in chronological order, are the headlines that appeared after that historic day:

March 17—"Three Fourths of Cassino Seized; Allied Troops Battling Way Up Monastery Hill as Nazis Yield Most of Cassino City."

March 18—"Germans Cling to Toehold in Razed Cassino" and "Yanks Fight to Occupy Cassino."

March 20—"Nazis Hurl Fresh Troops Into Cassino; Yanks Forced to Yield Position."

March 21—"British Forces Advancing Amid Cassino's Ruins; Germans Tighten Defenses."

March 22—"Battle for Cassino Rages" and "Allied Troops Forcing Nazis from Cassino."

Question: Just what in the hell is the score at Cassino? The American people would like to know.

THE ARMY RIDES AGAIN

An army press release has introduced an old-fashioned note into the frightful, mechanized efficiency of modern war. It reveals that in the midst of bazookas, rocket guns, precision bombers, radar and robot tanks, horse cavalry is still operating in Italy.

Horse troops have carried out night reconnaissance, found unmapped roads, removed human and natural obstacles for tanks and trucks, and once wiped out an enemy position.

Shades of Jeb Stuart and Phil Sheridan—to say nothing of Hannibal and Genghis Kahn!

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Ray Tucker

SLOW—The unprecedented epidemic of squabbles among supreme court members has lowered that body's prestige to an aldermanic level with veteran attaches, practitioners and reporters asking: Are these differences personal or judicial, both legal and personal, have had the practical effect of holding up decisions of vital importance in vital economic, social and political important.

It is doubtful whether this or any other high tribunal has ever before fallen so far behind in completing cases on the docket. Whereas, as about a hundred rulings had been handed down at this point in last year's term, only two-thirds of that total have been disposed of at this time.

At least 40 per cent of the litigation dealt with at this session has been the subject of sharp controversy. Sometimes the dissenting opinion consisted of only a one-line acknowledgment on the part of the offjurist. But more often the highly individualistic members wrote lengthy briefs to set forth their contrary views.

The present situation contrasts sharply with that which prevailed under former Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. He insisted that his associates do their homework promptly, and frequently chided slow or lazy judges. Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone is more lenient with his jolting and headstrong aides.

TUXEDOS—Dissents are not the only reason for congestion of the court's files. On numerous occasions one of the justices has concurred in the main finding but they have fallen for the urge to explain in artistic detail why their reasoning differed from that expressed in the official opinion.

Obviously when engaged in such fierce disputes, and so insistent on exploding on the least provocation, cannot find the time to tackle their more important duties. It takes as much research, labor and thought to prepare a dissent or separate statement as it does to frame a majority decision.

Principal participants in the legal feuds have been Justices Owen J. Roberts, Robert H. Jackson, William O. Douglas and Felix Frankfurter. Mr. Murphy, Frankfurter, Hugo L. Black, Stanley F. Reed running neck-and-neck. Hardest workers are Messrs. Stone, Roberts, Black, Jackson and Douglas.

A more timely explanation for the stalling of the legal machinery is that F.D.R.'s appointees, more so than most of the their predecessors, are quite socially inclined.

Time was when a supreme court jurist adopted a hermit's regimen when he slipped on the black gros-grain robe. But now certain members are seen in tuxedos or tails more often than in their official regalia. Naturally, they do not always pull their full weight on the judicial oars.

IRELAND—Several seemingly unrelated Anglo-American moves indicate that the United Nations are getting set for the first drama of World war II—an all-out, knockout attack on Hitler's Europe.

Quite appropriately, in view of the expectation that the United States will bear the brunt of the attack, the last-minute preparations have been left in President Roosevelt's hands.

The demand that Ireland oust axis apes, together with proposed pressures to enforce this request, is clearly a pre-invasion set of expediency. With England as the base of operations, we can't afford to permit such a strategic land to continue as an observation tower for the enemy.

The same consideration accounts for the more hardboiled policy pointed at Portugal, Spain and Turkey. Every "leak" of information or supplies must be plugged before our men hop across the channel—or wherever they are going to hop.

SURPRISE—F. D. R.'s supposedly offhand remark about allocation of one-third of the Italian fleet to Russia is a clue to the Soviet's future thinking. So are Secretary Cordell Hull's persistent efforts to coax Finland out of her struggle with the Soviet.

Naval experts note that red armadas operating in the Baltic and North seas, with friendly Reichland to the northeast, would harass der fuehrer while G.I.s and Tommies struck frontally.

Then there's the matter of the gasoline allowance for the whole nation fits into this picture. A similar restriction was imposed on eastern states just prior to our landings in north Africa.

All these preparations, although politically dangerous, are justified by the emergency. They may cost the Democrats some votes among the population senate in the autumn.

But the American commander-in-chief, as a more popular figure than Churchill with the Irish, Italians and Poles, is admirably deliberately chosen to master-of-ceremony the military show of the axis.

This "clearing of the underbrush," as our top fighting men term it, will give no comfort or tip to Berlin. The element of surprise, necessary for the success of the approaching offensive because the foe has seen it coming. The task now is to achieve tactical unexpectedness concerning the point of assault, numbers of invaders, land-sea-air strength, etc.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

Secretary Ickes, who coordinates our fisheries, foresees a possible use for the echo-sounding devices that detect the presence of submarines. These sensitive instruments, he thinks, may help in locating schools of fish. It gives a fisherman something to think about.

Why do people fish? A thousand philosophers have grappled with this obscure problem of human nature and have arrived at the answer that the utter uncertainty of the wet, weary and hungry pastime accounts for at least 50 per cent of its appeal. Even he who knew where he could catch a mouthful in half an hour would tire of the fun before he started. His gambling instinct just wouldn't be interested. Fit up his boat with a sound telegraph and guide him to the fish and what would become of the mystery of the unknown, that potent charm that coaxes the explorer into the jungle, the mountain into the fourth dimension and the fisherman into a strange bay on a rainy day?

It comes with a shock that science in its mad march into the realm of sport may not stop with fishing. Will it next equip our golf irons with range finders and the pheasant hunter's gun with a television set? Will its ruthless arm one day wrench from a speeder that a traffic cop is lurking round the bend?

Mr. Ickes, come to think, may have in mind commercial fishing only. In that case, perhaps there's nothing to be said. Still, Ickes have a mean way of spreading.—New York Times.

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE PRIMARY

Although the Gallup polls have shown Willkie running far behind Dewey in state after state the reverse of this developed in the first state to conduct a primary for election of delegates to the republican national convention. Four men committed to the Willkie candidacy were elected out of a total of 11 and all of the others elected are for Willkie. Two Dewey men were named.

This fairly close vote is important principally as indicating that the race between the two top G. O. P. prospects is close indeed as far as the rank and file voters are concerned, and probably a good deal closer so far as Republican politicians are concerned than some have sought to make it appear.

The next test of strength between Willkie and Dewey, in which delegates committed to MacArthur and Stassen will also be balloted upon, will be in Wisconsin the first week in April. After that Nebraska and Oregon are expected to vote on the two. So far as this writer has heard no other primary tests are in prospect.

This is probably unfortunate for Willkie, whose appeal is direct to the Republican masses, but whatever it is or not it is unfortunate from the standpoint of democracy. We have not yet set up machinery whereby the people can exert much influence on the nomination of presidents. We are limited to a choice of two men named by political leaders and their satellites at the conventions.—Nampa Free Press.

Putting in His Daily Order

"WASHINGTON CALLING" BY MARQUIS CHILDS

MADISON, Wis. — Wendell L. Willkie is making his political future on the outcome of the delegate election in this state that for nearly half a century has nurtured the LaFollette dynasty with its strong bent against war, against internationalism, against Wall street.

Marquis Childs

Whatever the big fellow has with the shaggy mop of hair does is bound to be dramatic. But this campaign would seem in many ways the crisis of his career.

A full slate of delegates pledged to Willkie is entered in the primary election on April 4. Against this slate are those of Governor Dewey's specific instructions, there is also a partial slate of Dewey men. Some delegates are pledged to Governor Stassen of Minnesota, now serving in the south Pacific, and there are delegates pledged to General MacArthur.

Willkie must get at least half of the 24 delegates if he is to show the country that he has real strength here in the middle west which is reputed to be reverting to isolationism. He knows this. It is a real challenge and there is nothing that Willkie likes better than to fight.

• • •

He knows, too, that the smart money has counted him out. The wise boys in his own party are saying he hasn't a chance to get the nomination.

That is what Harrison Spangler, Republican national chairman, and Winthrop Aldrich, the New York banker, He said Willkie would not get more than 200 delegates. It made Willkie so mad when he heard about it that he called Spangler on long distance to suggest to him that he come to Wisconsin and help the national committee and leave Willkie's campaign troubles to Willkie.

Willkie started his campaign in Wisconsin with a farm speech at Richland center. It was a rather mild summary of Willkie's farm stand. Phrased for the most part in generalities, it contained nothing new or startling. To an audience of dairy farmers, Willkie ended his speech as follows:

"I am convinced that many farmers fully understand—not less well but from their experience of life better than many others—that if the world as a whole is sick America can have no immunity. I am convinced that their deepest wish is that America share fully in the cooperative building and cooperative maintaining of a peaceful international order.

• • •

From this relatively quiet beginning, I believe Willkie will work up to a hard-hitting campaign. He has come to realize in recent weeks how completely the machinery of his party is turned against him.

He must set in motion an irresistible popular undercurrent that will carry him along in spite of the maneuverings of the party reactionaries. The odds are against him and he knows it. But he has a fighting chance.

• • •

For the next 10 days Willkie is going to campaign as intensively as though this were a national election. And then, if it's possible to get away from the professional politicians whose views always have to be discounted, I'd like to try to get some idea of what people out this way are thinking.

In Washington you get so perspective on the country. It is a town that manufactures its own climate and the temperature always either over 100 or below zero.

One thing I feel strongly about this trip of Willkie's. He is going to have something positive to offer —his own vigorous personality plus specific things that he stands for. That is bound to make him, before the public, a strong candidate. And it may also make the coyness, the silence, the evasive talk of the other candidates, real and avowed, look a little foolish.

ONE OVERSEAS LAD ARENT STRIKES

Dear Pot Shots:

Last time there was a big controversy over strikes, I told one of my overseas correspondents about it. Here is his answer:

"You know about those labor laws you mentioned in your letter. I guess the army doesn't have to fight them or else they don't figure the war can be won by using them. I'm sure is touch on a fellow especially here in New Guinea. I don't see why so many people back there do so much striking with all the things they have and the wages they get.

"But maybe a few of them should get the pay we get and do a little of the work we do in 100-degree heat during the day, and wade in the mud. Gosh, I must have forgotten myself to say that but I guess most of it's true. Some people seem to be prolonging the war for us boys."

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

ANALYZING CURRENT NEWS FROM NEW YORK

STORMS—A flurry news about limited successes achieved by "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell's marauders and the seizure by the British of the key island of Akyab indicates that the Yanks and Tommies in the Asiatic jungle are on the move at last.

Albert Lomax

United States officers home from this theater think that the public has an erroneous conception of the entire campaign. At first it expected a great drive to hurl the Japs from Burma, a grandiose dream that could not be realized at this stage of the war. Next it swung to the other extreme and judged all maneuvers in the center of minor importance.

Actually, ours is a middle-of-the-road strategy:

1. We seek to establish bases beyond the Assam frontier from which to goad the enemy and to connect India with China by air—and later by highway.

2. By means of land and sky raids we hope to disorganize the Japanese preservation of life should the owners get lost in the forests. They are taught that young shoots of bamboo contain enough moisture to keep a man from dying of thirst.

Homing pigeons that took part in the battle of Britain were brought to India by the RAF. The young of these famous birds will bear messages from marooned patrols whose emergency radios are out of commission. They can travel 600 miles at one hop and soon be released in flight.

Although no spectacular advances are probable in Burma until the rains stop in late fall, relentless pressure on Hirohito's far-flung lines ties up his shipping which might otherwise be used against MacArthur and Nimitz.

• • •

PRESSURE—United States labor department officials predict a large scale use of women in farm lands next summer to offset the dent in agricultural manpower caused by the stepped-up draft and prospects. Girls trained exceptionally helpful in harvesting crops last year.

It is expected that before the end of the war 14,000,000 of such workers will be occupied in all types of enterprise. This seems an impressive figure. But even in normal times nearly 14,000,000 were on pay rolls Union analysts estimate that after the armistice approximately 2,000,000 will return to homes, schools, etc. A surplus of at least 1,000,000 will remain.

Should a temporary depression hit the country, many wives of veterans might endeavor to hold their posts while their husbands search for positions or attempt to open independent businesses.

Tests show that 20 per cent of men's tasks can be accomplished by women. A great many girls are enrolled in labor organizations. Should a slump develop they might put pressure on union leaders for the retention of their jobs. Despite popular belief, the exodus of women from industry may not be so large or carried out so swiftly as is now assumed.

POWER—A most sensational development in wartime America is the expansion of Diesel engine output from 4,500,000 horsepower in 1940 to more than 15,000,000 today.

The shortage of tin for bearings has been a serious handicap since Japan took Malaya, but fuel and other metals have been substituted. Capture of the far eastern mines and refineries by the Japanese is not worth much to them as they are not adept at using this power unit.

American-built Diesels were installed in many of the locomotives exported to the Soviet Union; they expedited supplies and reinforcements in the Caucasus and helped the red army to advance swiftly.

Multiple power plants are used in United States tanks and in Australian barges. Mass production now provides the parts, a technique which will lower costs after the war. Moreover, small Diesel trucking craft are expendable and are usually left wherever wrecked in an attack, the machinery is salvaged.

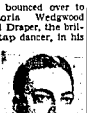
IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT BY EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—I bounced over to the Waldorf-Astoria Wedgwood room to catch Paul Draper, the brilliant, highly-paid tap dancer, in his big dance debut, and while romping around acting important, he'd hold somebody else brilliant — Congress woman Clare Boothe Luce, looking glossy, blonde and beautiful, and drinking something I figured out was champagne.



Earl Wilson

I gushed to my beautiful wife afterward, "I was just talking to Clare Booth Luce!"

"Really, the B. W. gushed back, "what did she say?"

"She didn't answer," I retorted, like a flash.

Which isn't true: Mrs. Luce was very nice and certainly gorgeous; she didn't know whether I should mention she was married, or supposed to be in night clubs," she said. She probably meant it was the first time she's been out since the tragic death of her lovely daughter. Mrs. Luce lives at the Waldorf Towers when not feeling the pulse of her constituents in Connecticut, or making laws in Washington, and was persuaded to attend the Draper opening by Lucius Boomer, head of the Waldorf, and Mrs. Boomer. Draper was brought up to her table just as I got out my notebook, so I regretfully withdrew and went over and met "Bugs" Baer, who was wrestling with a quart bottle of beer, which he split with me. Shows you how democratic we are in the Waldorf.

• • •

Your cerebral correspondent, while fascinated by the wonderful hoofing of the several-thousand-dollars-a-week Mr. Draper, doesn't pretend he understands tap dancing.

For instance, Draper announced he was going to do a very short number, I took a drink and got ready to look at it. While I finished the swallow and looked up, the dance was over.

But I'm sure the intellectuals present, such as Sam Grafions, the Cecil Browns, the Larry Adlers, the Donald Budges, the Howard Lindsays, and myself forget Mrs. Antrim Tools Shore, understood it. Personally, all I know about fancy dancing is the word arabesque. That's a word I picked up in an obscure place, like a dictionary, and if it doesn't mean what you do when you kick your heels in the air, I was robbed. (Stick with me and get educated.)

Draper was sensationally attired in silk gold pants, a pair of royal navy blue, with a vest the back of which was in mild shocking pink, and a silk broadcloth shirt with three Russian sidebuttons high up on the neck.

• • •

Out he leaped onto the floor, doing the Strahan shuffle number, "I'm Sorry With the Fringe on Top," a medley including "Mairzy Doats," and others.

Draper's the young man who cured himself of stuttering while dancing. While making little speeches last night, he would clap his hands as though to bring forth a word, and in every instance he got the word right.

"I can't see the edge of the floor and I may land in the champagne," he said, and, asking for more light, He said he'd decided after finishing up his income tax puzzle that each guest coming in last night cost him $37.40.

He was enormously popular, and beautifully received. Singer Corinna Mura, who also made a spectacular-looking in a Kathryn Kuhn gown.

Frank (Bring-Em-Back-Alive) Buck was in El Morocco all dressed up for the jungle in a tuxedo with a rose in his buttonhole. I didn't recognize him at first. He said, "I have on his pith helmet, but pretty soon he explained to me that he's getting ready for entertaining some foreign lands to army trainees. "I haven't got an animal left in the world," he said. "The Raffles Hotel in Singapore, in which I have had an interest, is now Japanese general headquarters." Frank said there would be a terrific dearth of wild animals when the war is over, and that he will plunge right back into the business then. "I'm not tripping over my beard by that time."

Miss Noel Toy, the eminent Chinese strip-teaser, opened at the Club 18 in the guise of a comedienne, and I'm trying to think of a word to describe her. Terrific isn't the word. Sensational isn't the word. Lousy isn't the word. I've got it—she was great: t-r-t-t-t. Of course Vincent Curran, the bubbling genius, added a few quite a bit, he said, "This is the first wake I've ever seen with a minimum," and he added, "I don't want you to slip any more things out of the Christian Science Monitor." He's a great kidder, that Vince. She'll do very well.

BRICKER TAKES CAMPAIGN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — Pre-convention politics stirred both major parties today on the eve of the selection of convention delegates in seven states who will help pick the presidential nominees this summer in Chicago.

On the Republican side, Gov. John W. Bricker, Ohio, again took his campaign for the presidential nomination to the south in a five-state drive for delegates which will wind up a week from yesterday in Colorado.

With Wendell L. Willkie still stumping Wisconsin in advance of that state's presidential primary April 4, Bricker will hold conferences and speak at Birmingham tomorrow night, Little Rock Saturday, Oklahoma City Monday, Wichita Tuesday and Denver and Colorado Springs next Thursday.

Bricker leaders also announced plans for him to go to the west coast sometime between April 7 and 21.

Any One But Willkie

The day also brought disclosures that Emil Hurja, former Democratic national committee statistician and now editor of the Pathfinder magazine, recently told a New York private forum of business men that any prominent Republican but Willkie could win the presidency from President Roosevelt ... and that Willkie later wrote to the business men protesting the holding of such meetings.

Democratic politicians described the Albany county organization move to oust James A. Farley as New York Democratic state chairwoman of his attitude on a fourth term as simply a state controversy dating back to Farley's choice of John J. Bennett as the party's gubernatorial nominee in 1942.

Officers at Democratic national headquarters adopted a hands-off attitude in the anti-Farley affairs. They recalled that Chairman Robert E. Hannegan in taking office last January emphasized party unity and said he would make every effort to bring Farley and others of the same school back into active party work.

7 States to Pick Delegates

Meanwhile, with very little to indicate any trend toward particular individuals for the GOP presidential nomination in delegate-picking to date, seven states will choose an additional 154 Republican and 110 Democratic delegates before April 1 in state conventions and primaries beginning tomorrow. So far the Democrats have selected 32 and Republicans 63.

Maine Democrats hold their state convention tomorrow to name 10 delegates, while Louisiana Republicans in another convention will pick 13.

Four years ago Maine's Democratic delegates were instructed to support President Roosevelt if his name went before the convention and indications are similar action will be taken tomorrow.

Delegates Uninstructed

Louisiana's Republican leaders regarded it likely their 13 delegates will be instructed, although supporters of Willkie and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey have been seeking their support. Efforts also may be made to impose the unit rule which Willkie has been fighting in visits to the south, particularly in Texas.

Under this rule, a majority of a state delegation votes for the entire delegation in the national convention, allowing no split votes. The national convention, however, has refused to recognize this rule in recent years, and has allowed each member of a delegation to demand a roll call poll of his state's convention vote.

Other states to select delegates before April 1:

Saturday—Minnesota Republican district conventions to name 14 district delegates. Four district delegates already have been chosen and seven at-large will be named in state convention April 1. Arizona's Democratic state committee names 10 delegates.

Tuesday — New York primaries *elect 85 Republican and 90 Demo*cratic district delegates.

March 31 — Kansas and Iowa state conventions complete GOP delegations of 19 and 23, respectively.

With Action Aplenty, Marine Returns for Officer Training

* * * *

Officer Candidate

Marine Sgt. John Wells, who saw enough action on Vella Lavella to last a lifetime (68 days and in 45 days), now wants to see it from another angle—this time as an officer. Though eligible for officer training when he enlisted in the marine corps over two years ago, he refused because he didn't want to miss anything the marine corps offered him as an enlisted man.

And after 13 months overseas he believes he's ready for officer training — and incidentally, he was the only man from his battalion selected for officer training when he returned to the states for this training. Now visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alma H. Wells, Twin Falls, Sergeant Wells will leave next month to begin his officer's training at San Diego, Calif., and Quantico, Va.

Natives Do Work

Guadalcanal, New Caledonia, Vella Lavella, and Bougainville are some of the high spots in his military career. One redeeming feature, he says, is that most of the hard labor is done by natives in the Solomons.

Without their assistance we couldn't get much done," Sergeant Wells declares. "The heat is terrific — almost more than a white man can bear. Mosquitoes are thicker than grasshoppers, and in the rainy season it's impossible to keep dry.

"But regardless of the critical conditions the boys are fighting under, their spirits were always high and most of humor O. K."

Wells attributes this to the special training given to marines who are selected to realize they have a job to do—that casualties are bound to be high, but the job must be done and done quickly. He wears the standoorg's medal, as well as the expert insignia for bayonet, rifle and pistol. He also has the machine gun and automatic weapons expert insignia for bayonet, rifle and pistol. He also has the machine gun and automatic weapons expert bars, but there's no room for them when he wears his campaign ribbons and two stars for service on Bougainville and Vella Lavella.

Overseas Both Ways

The statue of liberty looked plenty good to Wells in 1939 as he was returning from an L. D. S. mission in Germany. That was before he ever dreamed of becoming a marine. But the golden gate at San Francisco was a hundred times more welcome after he'd spent over a year in the south Pacific. Sergeant Wells will speak at the first ward L. D. S. tabernacle in Twin Falls Sunday evening.

The marine sergeant's three brothers, all in the service, are: Staff Sgt. Russell Wells, with the U. S. army in England; and Pvts. Ray and Rex Wells, both in marine V-12 training. Rex Wells is at the University of Michigan and Ray at the San Diego marine base.

Lumber Worker Shortage Grows

PORTLAND, Ore., March 24 (AP)—A shortage of 27,375 lumber workers by July 1 unless wage increases are granted was predicted today by the war manpower commission labor economist.

Most of the workers are needed in Oregon, now short 4,674 workers, and Washington, needing 3,800, Bloch said.

Vets to Get U.S. Jobs Preference

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — Legislation giving war veterans—both men and women—preference in filling government jobs, was unanimously approved by the house civil service committee today.

Rep. Rees, R., Kan., ranking minority member of the committee, said the house rules committee would be asked to give the measure immediate clearance so it can be acted on by the house. The bill was introduced by Rep. Starnes, D., Ala.

The measure would give service men and women from five to 10 points additional in grades it may make in civil service examinations.

ENGINEERS SAVE "FLYING BOXCAR"

By CPL. BERNARD FREEMAN
(Written for the Associated Press)

SOMEWHERE IN BRITISH GUIANA — The huge transport plane, a C-54, droned along approximately one hour after four engines had broken camp at solid jungle. It was within a half hour of its destination, and passengers dozed wearily.

Suddenly one of the right motors coughed. The pilot ordered everybody to tighten his safety belt as the ship began to lose altitude. Where, in the jungle, could there be a happy landing? Not in the endless trees that plane swept over. And then a miracle, as one might see in a Hollywood Class B movie.

Opening Appeared

An opening appeared in the brush — a narrow muddy, seven miles long and at least a mile wide. The pilot, Capt. Hal Chilleaple, Miami, Fla., prepared for a belly landing. He literally slid in and the "flying boxcar" became a stick-in-the-mud. There was not so much as a skidding up for the passengers, only a bent propeller and a scraped undercarriage.

But how to get out of that mudflat? Army planes have cracked up before in inaccessible places in the British Guiana jungles, and have flown out, but never any plane the size of the "flying boxcar, representing an expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars, to say nothing of its enormous and vitally needed capacity for transporting cargo and personnel to the fighting fronts.

Firm ground was nearby, but how could the plane be lifted out of the mud and moved to firm ground? It weighed 17,000 pounds and carried 600 gallons of gasoline. The army engineers did it, in 55 torturous days.

Jungle Road Built

A road had to be pushed through five miles of some of the worst swamps and jungle in the world, over which several bulldozers and tons of steel plank matting, later to be used as a runway, had to be moved. Then the wings were built on the road over which came the food and supplies for the men.

The first step of the engineers, under Capt. Vester J. Thompson, Jr., Mobile, Ala., was to dig a hole under the undercarriage. Then to provide power with which to lift the plane, six canvas bags, 10 by six feet, were placed underneath and inflated. The plane was raised high enough to place corduroy cribbing under each of the wheels. The process was repeated until the wheels were elevated to the level of the mudflat. Then the plane was moved over the cribbing to solid ground.

LAND BOARD WILL REPLACE GIRARD

BOISE, March 24 (U.P.)—The state land board was to meet today to consider a recommendation of the state cooperative board of forestry Dint Stanton G. Ready, Coeur d'Alene, deputy state forester, be appointed to replace State Forester Franklin Girard.

The land board declared Girard's office vacant yesterday, and the cooperative board, acting within its powers, recommended Ready's appointment.

No reasons were given by any of the land board members for their vote declaring the office vacant. Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen, state Auditor Calvin E. Wright and School Superintendent A. H. Claxburn voted to vacate the office. Atty. Gen. Bert H. Miller voted no. Secretary of State George H. Curtis was not present.

Girard has served as state forester since 1937 after he had served a term as secretary of state. His office has been declared vacant several times in the past, but until yesterday, he always won the cooperative board's approval for reappointment.

RUPERT COLONEL WINS HIGH HONOR

RUPERT, March 24—The fighting commander of a fighting infantry battalion has won a citation from Lieut.-Gen. Millard F. Harmon commanding officer of south Pacific ground operations.

Winning the citation was Lieut.-Col. S. Katsarsky, Rupert. Colonel Katsarsky's wife, living here, said the honor came because of the work *the colonel's battalion did in annihi*lating an allied wedge from the Munda airfield to the sea coast.

Colonel Katsarsky's citation from General Harmon said:

"The determined leadership you displayed in commanding an infantry battalion during the Munda campaign on New Georgia, Solomon islands, contributed much to the success of your unit or mission from July 26 to Aug. 4, 1943. When the Japanese made four desperate counter-attacks to stop your battalion's advance they were completely repulsed after bitter fighting. After a long fierce assault, your unit captured an entire Japanese anti-aircraft battalion's installations. In these actions you were with the foremost elements and on two occasions controlled your battalion from observation posts under heavy enemy fire."

Yank Troops Got Chickens Despite Nazis

The assistant manager of a department store has to have a certain amount of resourcefulness, and it may be that that quality is contagious in the company commanded by Capt. Newcombe McCall, former assistant manager at C. C. Anderson's store.

Captain McCall, who took part in the invasions of both Sicily and Kiska, now commands a company on the Anzio beachhead in Italy, and wears a purple heart decoration for a wound received on Christmas day.

Recently, says his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Wickersham, sister, one of the soldiers in his company asked permission to take a patrol down a certain road where the presence of Germans was known.

"But there are Germans in one of those farm houses down there," protested Captain McCall. "I know that, sir," the soldier said. "We can get them, too, but I just heard there were a lot of chickens running loose around there."

That was how this company earned one night of welcome respite from "C" rations.

Captain McCall enlisted in the army immediately after war was declared.

NAZI PROPAGANDA SMEARS AMERICA

By MEL MOST

(Associated Press correspondent just released from German internment)

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—The United States, say the German propagandists, is a country where patriots parade, include naked girls on top of army tanks, where Jewish architects plan to replace Saint Peter's church in Rome with a skyscraper, where generals store bathtubs in marble Roman tubs sent them from museums in Sicily, and where mentality has practically ceased to exist.

This is more or less the picture a German would get of America if he believed the most virulent campaign of Goebbels' domestic propaganda—that against a very real pro-American feeling inside Germany.

Has Big Job

Enraged with helplessness in the face of this feeling, the German domestic propaganda results in some of its stupidest and most ineffectual tricks.

It has a big job Germans face the fact of having relatives in America so much for granted that I remember a German soldier's death notice inserted in the local paper "on behalf of bereaved family members in Baden Baden and Brooklyn" although the Brooklynites could hardly have been consulted.

At first Goebbels' home department tried an all-out frontal attack on the theme for which America made a reputation abroad—democracy and efficiency.

He issued expensive booklets with gruesome, age-old pictures of lynchings, bread lines, unemployment parades, and pitched battles between strikers and police.

Drive a Failure

This first drive was a failure. The booklets were allowed to run out of print and their phoney publishers disappeared from the scene.

Then, a drive picturing America as completely run by Jews was likewise continued only very perfunctorily.

Since the American girl is admired universally in Europe for her looks and individuality, the new drive was aimed largely at defaming her and became almost exclusively smut.

Typical of the booklets issued in this period was one called "USA Nackt" (Naked U.S.A.) consisting of every possible picture of the unclothed feminine figure out of the United States—from nudist camps and strip-tease shows to rape murders.

WAR TACTICS SET FAR IN ADVANCE

By WAYNE OLIVER

ORLANDO, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Tactics that will be turned loose six to ten months hence are being perfected now at the army air forces tactical center here.

The huge new "aerial laboratory" also is a sort of repair shop for current tactics that suddenly fail to work, and is used to devise defenses against enemy techniques.

What's being cooked up is, of course, a military secret of the first order, but here is how the center works in revising current tactics.

Suppose a big armada of planes using formations that have been successful in the past suffers heavy losses in carrying out a mission against a vital German objective.

Immediately, the situation is sent to the air forces board; perhaps ten or three of the key men on the raid come back by air. The board, all experts in aerial warfare, meets to hear just what the luftwaffe did that enabled it to get through.

The board goes to work correcting the tactics. The completed plan is rehearsed to see how it works with veterans from the war fronts and the pick of the air forces' new fliers constituting the mock battles. The veterans point out flaws and these are corrected.

When the revised plan has been thoroughly tested, the solutions are forwarded to the air force for use at once. The next aerial mission is ready for any tactics the nazis may use.

A quarter of a century ago, school children were dismissed to see passing automobiles.

NEW CONTROLS ON PAPER PACKAGING

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—Increasingly heavy war demands ran the consumption of paper and paperboard higher last year than at any time except the peak year of 1941 despite government conservation and limitation orders, the office of war information said today in a report on the paper situation.

Almost simultaneously the war production board announced more drastic controls on the use of paperboard containers for shipping civilian goods, including restrictions for the first time on packaging more than 30 food items, effective April 1.

WPB said the restrictions are necessitated by increased military shipment needs which exceed the supply of containers.

Thirty-four food items, from bacon to vermicelli, appear on the restricted list with quotas ranging from 100 per cent to 40 per cent in the use of cartons. Animal and pet food, formerly allowed 80 per cent of base period shipping carton supply, are cut a new quota of 50 per cent.

Non-food items newly restricted under carton quotas of not less than 70 per cent include curtains, cushions, slipcovers, household screens, attire supplies, mirrors, drinking straws, soap and tobacco products.

The war production board states that 26.6 per cent of the country's total paper and paperboard production is purchased and used directly for war purposes while another 33.5 per cent is used largely to maintain a war economy, such as communications and transportation. The remaining 27.9 per cent is shared by civilian users.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Sets First Spring Rushing Parties

Their first annual spring rush parties, scheduled throughout April, were of prime importance in the discussion and planning of events for the next few months when members of Omicron chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, international young business women's sorority, held a meeting this week, sorority officers have announced.

Although rushing does not officially begin until the pledge party calendared Wednesday, April 6, it has been announced that 22 young business women of the city will be guests when that event does take place.

Mrs. Mary Bradley Syvrud, president of the sorority chapter which was formed here last autumn with Mrs. Claude Detweiler as sponsor, conducted the meeting at which spring events were calendared, and named Miss Jeanne Bair as general chairman of spring rushing.

Founder's Day Party

The international organization was founded for young women in search of social and cultural activity. Omicron chapter, with others throughout the world, will honor founder's day at a celebration here Sunday, April 30.

Miss Joann LeClair has been named general chairman for that event, which will feature a dinner at which young women now in the organization will pass the ritual of jewels.

Colorful pledging ceremonies will take place at that time for those girls who accept bids to the sorority at the acceptance tea April 16. Miss Gail Bean, Mrs. Mary Scott and Mrs. Maxine Garnand will assist Miss Bair with arrangements of the acceptance tea.

Theme of the pledge party April 6 is being kept a "deep, dark secret" by Miss Bair and her assistants, Miss Charlotte Richardson and Miss Myrtle Haskamp. The event will be formal.

"Model Meeting"

One special event, between the pledge party and acceptance tea, will be a "model meeting," to be conducted April 12 at the Y.W.C.A. rooms. A business meeting will be conducted and an entertaining program will be presented, with pledges as special guests.

Assistants of Miss Bair at this event include Miss Margaret Hampton, Miss Helen Blue, Miss Velma Morse and Mrs. Phyllis Matthews.

Besides Mrs. Syvrud, other officers of the sorority include Miss Bair as vice-president; Miss LeClair, recording secretary; Miss Gale Bream, corresponding secretary, and Miss Morse, treasurer.

At the business meeting this week, it was announced that the $15 realized from the recently cooked food sale would be contributed to the Red Cross.

CARE OF YOUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

Troubled as we are by the way of our adolescent youth in wartime, we are likely to overlook the children who go steadily on their straight and none-too-easy road to the good life. That great group of young people are sustaining us spiritually today, cheering us at our labor to meet the needs of a people at war. Those needs are more likely to be spiritual than material and it is the spirit these young ones stimulate day by day.

I was in a lovely old American city recently, about to enter a hotel on one of the busiest streets. It was a bright cool day with a smart wind blowing. The wind lifted the hat off the head of a handsome gentleman alongside of me. It went whirling down the street among the traffic.

Refuses Reward

Immediately a tiny figure went weaving through the cars and caught the hat and restored it to the grateful gentleman. "Here, son, let me give you—"

"No, no, no sir. I couldn't. Thank you sir."

The big man looked down, way down, to the tiny boy who was refusing the tip so well-earned and said, "Let me buy you a chocolate bar, a soda? A coke?"

"No, sir, thank you. I couldn't."

The little chap looked to be about six-years old until you saw his face. It was a child's face but well past six. His body was thin, the little shoulders almost sticking through his sweater. Plainly life had not been kind to him. He looked as though he needed friends about as bad as a child ever would but he resolutely refused to accept anything for the courtesy he had extended the gentleman.

"Isn't there something I can do for you? After all I was glad to have you help me. Let me do something now for you."

The child studied the kind face above him for an instant, smiled and said, "You might let me brush your shoes and then you might pay me for it."

Insurance for the Future

I left the two making friends fast, the very big man who had the world in his pocket and the very small boy who had nothing in the world but a fine character, a fine upbringing. The child's dignity, his utter lack of selfishness in his service, his standard of behavior brought proud smiles and lighter hearts to us who watched the happening.

It was not so much that he refused a tip but that his whole being radiated, what we like to think is the best tradition of American conduct. He was poor, alone, among strangers, and absolutely without fear. He had a standard and lived up to it. As long as we have children like that, we are safe.

WACS Keep 'Em Flying

Guiding the flights of the giant bombers and fast fighter planes from an air field control tower is just one of the 239 jobs now open to members of the women's army corps. Prospective WACS can now pick their jobs from the army air forces, army ground forces or army service forces and name the camp or air field where they want to be stationed when they enlist.

* * * *

Join WACS and "Write Own Ticket" Girls Told

If you want to guide the big bombers and power-packed fighters of the army air forces from a control tower, just tell the U. S. army. If you want to be a mechanic or a geodetic surveyor or a telegraph operator, just name your job and the camp or airfield where you want to be stationed.

That's the new ticket that women of Magic Valley can write for themselves when they enlist in the women's army corps, according to Lieut Marjorie Lyon, WAC recruiter who is here every other Tuesday.

Select Own Service

WAC recruits can now not only select their branch of service, but they can pick the actual job and, depending on the needs of the army, the camp, post or air field where they want to be stationed.

Under the new plan, WACS can choose any one of the three main branches of the army—the army air forces, ground forces, or service forces.

JEROME, March 24 — Approximately 100 couples were present at the annual St. Patrick's dance, sponsored here by the Women's Catholic league. In charge of arrangements were Mrs. R. E. Daley, Mrs. John Hosman, Mrs. Guy Stanton, Mrs. Marita Strachan and Mrs. G. Paul Smith.

Bond Saleswomen Get Citations of Treasury

Special citations from the United States surgeon general, for having sold $6,000 or more in series "E" bonds, have been received by one woman and two organizations in Twin Falls county, and citations from the United States treasury department in recognition of outstanding work have been received by several other women whose work helped make the fourth war bond drive a success.

Surgeon general's citation has been received by Mrs. Mattie Vickers, 73-year-old great-grandmother, who sold 68 series "E" bonds with a valuation of $6,775, during the very first of the February drive.

Others Awarded

The surgeon general's citation has also been received by the Bondodires, of which Mrs. E. W. McRoberts is chairman, and by the Twentieth Century club. Each organization was responsible for the sale of more than $25,000 worth of bonds during the drive.

Miss Shirley Smith, whose record of $177,750 worth of bonds sold, is eligible for the surgeon general's award, but declined to have her name submitted for it, since she felt that she hadn't achieved that record, alone—that credit should also be given to other bondodiers.

She has already received a personal letter of commendation from John A. Schoonover, Boise, Idaho chairman of the war finance committee, in recognition of her outstanding sales in the state.

Treasury Citation

The certificates signed by Henry J. Morgenthau and Mr. Schoonover are awarded "for patriotic cooperation rendered in behalf of the war finance program," and were received by the following Twin Falls women:

Mrs. John E. Hayes, state chairman of the women's division of the war finance committee; Mrs. Frankie Alworth, Twin Falls county chairman; Mrs. O. O. McGill, city chairman; Mrs. R. L. Reed, "war-sage" chairman; Mrs. McRoberts, chairman of the Bondodiers, and Mrs. A. J. Peavey, an assistant city chairman.

Catholic Women Arrange Election

Nominating committee, headed by Mrs. Lyons Smith, was elected at the Thursday evening meeting of the Catholic Women's league. Mrs. Roe Roach and Mrs. Owen Burbidge also were named to report with her at the next meeting.

Plans were completed for the annual Easter cooked food sale to be held Saturday, April 8, with Mrs. Mollie Klinas as chairman.

Program included a paper on Mother Cabrini, given by Mrs. Lyons Smith.

NAZI PROPAGANDA SMEARS AMERICA

By MEL MOST

(Associated Press correspondent just released from German Internment)

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—The United States, say the German propagandists, is a country where patriotic parades include naked girls on top of army tanks, where Jewish architects plan to replace Saint Peter's church in Rome with a skyscraper, where general's wives bathe in marble fountains taken from them from museums in Sicily, and where morality has practically ceased to exist.

This is more or less the picture a German would get of America if he believed the most childish examples of Goebbels' domestic propagandists—that against a very real pro-American feeling inside Germany.

Has Big Job

Enraged with helplessness in the face of this feeling, German officials have put forward with some of its stupidest and most ineffectual tricks.

It has a big job Germans take the fact of having relatives in America so much for granted that I remember a German soldier's death notice inserted in the local paper "on behalf of bereaved family members in Baden Baden and Brooklyn" although the latter probably would hardly have been consulted.

At first Goebbels' home department tried an all-out frontal attack on the things for which America made a reputation abroad—democracy and efficiency.

The issued expensive booklets with gruesome, age-old pictures of lynchings, bread lines, unemployment parades, and pitched battles between strikers and police.

Drive a Failure

This first drive was a failure. The booklets showed up too much out of print and their phoney publishers disappeared from the scene.

Then, a strive picturing America as completely run by Jews was likewise continued only very perfunctorily.

Since the American girl is admired universally in Europe for her looks and individuality, the new drive was aimed largely at defaming her and became almost exclusively smut.

Typical of the booklets issued in this period was one called "USA Nackt" (Naked U.S.A.) consisting of every possible picture of the unclothed female figure out of the United States—from nudist camps and strip-tease shows to rape murders.

WAR TACTICS SET FAR IN ADVANCE

By WAYNE OLIVER

ORLANDO, Fla., March 24 (AP)—Tactics that will be turned loose at 10 ten months hence are being perfected now at the army air forces tactical center here.

The huge new "aerial laboratory" also is a sort of repair shop for current tactics that suddenly fail to work, and is used to devise defenses against enemy techniques.

What's being cooked up is, of course, a military secret of the first order, but here is how the center works in revising current tactics:

Suppose a big armada of planes using formations that have been successful in the past suffers heavy losses in carrying out a mission against a vital German objective.

Immediately, the situation is sent to the air forces board; perhaps two or three of the key men on the raid come back by air. The board, all experts in aerial warfare, meets to hear just what the luftwaffe did that enabled it to get through.

The board goes to work correcting the tactics. The completed plan is rehearsed to see how it works with veterans from the war front, and the pick of the air forces' new fliers completing the mock battles. The veterans point out flaws and these are corrected.

When the revised plan has been thoroughly tested, the solutions are forwarded to the air force for use at once. The next aerial mission is ready for any tactics the nazis may use

BUHL, March 24—Frederick H. Turner, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Turner, 429 Broadway, is now receiving training at the Farragut naval training station, after volunteering under the program for 17-year-old youths.

NEW CONTROLS ON PAPER PACKAGING

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP) — Increasingly heavy war demands ran the consumption of paper and paperboard higher last year than at any time except the peak year of 1941 despite government conservation and limitation orders, the office of war information said today in a report on the paper situation.

Almost simultaneously the war production board announced more drastic controls on the use of paperboard containers for shipping civilian goods, including restrictions for the first time on packaging more than 30 food items, effective April 1.

WPB said the restrictions are necessitated by increased military shipment needs which exceed the supply of containers.

Thirty-four food items, from bacon to vermicelli, appear on the restricted list with quotas ranging from 100 per cent to 40 per cent in the use of cartons. Animal and pet food, formerly allowed 80 per cent of base period shipping carton supply, are cut a new quota of 50 per cent.

Non-food items newly restricted under carton quotas of not less than 70 per cent include curtains, cushions, slipcovers, household screens, office supplies, mirrors, drinking straws, soap and tobacco products.

The war production board states that 38.6 per cent of the country's total paper and paperboard production is purchased and used directly for war purposes while another 33.5 per cent is used largely to maintain war economy, such as communications and transportation. The remaining 27.9 per cent is shared by civilian users.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority Sets First Spring Rushing Parties

Their first annual spring rush parties, scheduled throughout April, were of prime importance in the discussion and planning of events for the next few months when members of Omicron chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, international young business women's sorority, held a meeting this week, sorority officers have announced.

Although rushing does not officially begin until the pledge party calendared Wednesday, April 6, it has been announced that 22 young business women of the city will be guests when that event does take place.

Mrs. Mary Bradley Syvrud, president of the sorority chapter which was formed here last summer with Mrs. Claude Detweiler as sponsor, conducted the meeting at which spring events were calendared, and named Miss Jeanne Bair as general chairman of spring rushing.

Founder's Day Party

The international organization was founded for young women in search of social and cultural activity. Omicron chapter, with others throughout the world, will honor founder's day at a reception here Sunday, April 30.

Miss Joan LeClair has been named general chairman for that event, which will feature a dinner at which young women now in the organization will pass the ritual of jewels.

Colorful pledging ceremonies will take place at that time for those girls who accept bids to the sorority at the acceptance tea, April 16. Miss Gail Bean, Mrs. Mary Scott and Mrs. Maxine Garnand will assist Miss Bair with arrangements of the acceptance tea.

Theme of the pledge party April 6 is being kept a "deep, dark secret" by Miss Bair and her assistants. Miss Charlotte Richardson and Miss Myrtle Haskamp. The event will be formal.

"Model Meeting"

One special event, between the pledge party and acceptance tea, will be a "model meeting," to be conducted April 12 at the Y.W.C.A. rooms. A business meeting will be conducted and an entertaining program will be presented, with pledges as special guests.

Assistants of Miss Bair at this event include Miss Margaret Hampton, Miss Helen Blue, Miss Velma Morse and Mrs. Phyllis Matthews.

Besides Mrs. Syvrud, other officers of the sorority include Miss Bair as vice-president; Miss LeClair, recording secretary; Miss Gale Bean, corresponding secretary, and Miss Morse, treasurer.

At the business meeting this week, it was announced that the $15 received from a recent cooked food sale would be contributed to the Red Cross.

CARE OF YOUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

Troubled as we are by the way of our adolescent youth in wartime, we are likely to overlook the children who go steadily on their straight and none-too-easy way to the good life. That great group of young people are sustaining us spiritually today, cheering us as we labor to meet the needs of a people at war. Those needs are more likely to be spiritual than material and it is the spirit these young ones stimulate day by day.

I was in a lovely old American city recently, about to enter a hotel on one of the busiest streets. It was a bright cool day with a smart wind blowing. The wind lifted the hat off the head of a handsome gentleman alongside of me. It went whirling down the street among the traffic.

Refuses Reward

Immediately a tiny figure went weaving through the cars caught the hat and restored it to the grateful gentleman. "Here, son, let me give you—"

"No, no, no sir. I couldn't. Thank you sir."

The big man looked down, way down, to the tiny boy who was refusing the tip so well-earned and said, "Let me buy you a chocolate bar, a soda? A coke?"

"No, sir, thank you. I couldn't."

The little chap looked to be about six-years old until you saw his face. It was a child's face but well past six. His body was thin, the little shoulders almost sticking through his sweater. Plainly life had not been kind to him. He looked as though he needed friends about as bad as a child ever would but he resolutely refused to accept anything for the courtesy he had extended the gentleman.

"Isn't there something I can do for you? After all I was glad to have you help me. Let me do something now for you."

The child studied the kind face above him for an instant, smiled and said, "You might let me brush your shoes and then you might pay me for it."

Insurance for the Future

I left the two making friends fast, the very big man who had the world in his pocket and the very small boy who had nothing in the world but a fine character, a fine upbringing. The child's sincerity, his utter lack of selfishness in his service, his standard of behavior brought proud smiles and lighter hearts to us who watched the happening.

It was not so much that he refused a tip but that his whole being radiated, what we like to think is the best tradition of American conduct. He was poor, alone, among strangers, and absolutely without fear. He had a standard and lived up to it. As long as we have children like that we are safe.

WACS Keep 'Em Flying

Guiding the flights of the giant bombers and fast fighter planes from an air field control tower is just one of the 239 jobs now open to members of the women's army corps. Prospective WACS can now pick their jobs from the army air forces, army ground forces or army service forces and name the camp or air field where they want to be stationed when they enlist.

* * * * * * * *

Join WACS and "Write Own Ticket" Girls Told

If you want to guide the big bombers and power-packed fighters of the army air forces from a control tower, just tell the U. S. army. If you want to be a mechanic or a radio surveyor or a telegraph operator, just name your job and the camp or airfield where you want to be stationed.

That's the new ticket that women of Magic Valley can write for themselves when they enlist in the women's army corps, according to Lieut Marjorie Lyon, WAC recruiter who is here every other Tuesday.

Select Own Service

WAC recruits can now not only select their branch of service, but they can pick the actual job and, depending on the needs of the army the camp, post or air field where they want to be stationed.

Under the new plan, WACS can choose any one of the three main branches of the army—the army air forces, ground forces, or service forces.

A grand total of 239 jobs are combined under these three branches. Covering an enormous sweep of training, backgrounds and interests, jobs range from tower control operator, airplane mechanic and parachute rigger in the air forces, to radio operator, draftsman and meteorologist in the ground forces, to X-ray technician, truck driver and personal technician in the service forces.

Choose Assignment

After picking their jobs, WACS can now ask for initial assignment to any camp, post or airfield within the limits of their service command.

Keynoting the campaign, which is expected to bring thousands of women between the ages of 21 and 49 inclusive, into the WAC, is the slogan: "Woman's Place in War—The Women's Army Corps!"

Lieutenant Lyon can be contacted through the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Bond Saleswomen Get Citations of Treasury

Special citations from the United States surgeon general, for having sold $5,000 or more in series "E" bonds, have been received by one woman and two organizations in Twin Falls county, and citations from the United States treasury department in recognition of outstanding work have been received by seven other women whose work helped make the fourth war bond drive a success.

Surgeon general's citation has been received by Mrs. Mattie Vickers, 73-year-old great-grandmother, who sold 68 series "E" bonds with a valuation of $6,775, during the very first of the February drive.

Others Awarded

The surgeon general's citation has also been received by the Bondoliers, of which Mrs. E. W. McRoberts is chairman, and by the Twentieth Century club. Each organization was responsible for the sale of more than $25,000 worth of bonds during the drive.

Miss Shirley Smith, whose record of $177,750 worth of bonds sold, is eligible for the surgeon general's award, but declined to have her name submitted for it, since she felt that she hadn't achieved that record alone—that credit should also be given to other Bondoliers.

She has already received a personal letter of commendation from John A. Schoonover, Boise, Idaho chairman of the war finance committee, in recognition of her outstanding sales in the state.

Treasury Citation

The certificates, signed by Henry J. Morgenthau and Mr. Schoonover are awarded "for patriotic cooperation rendered in behalf of the war finance program," and were received by the following Twin Falls women:

Mrs. John E. Hayes, state chairman of the women's division of the war finance committee; Mrs. Frankie Alworth, Twin Falls county chairman; Mrs. O. O. McRill, city chairman; Mrs. R. L. Reed, "war-saver" chairman; Mrs. McRoberts, chairman of the Bondoliers, and Mrs. A. J. Peavey, an assistant city chairman.

Catholic Women Arrange Election

Nominating committee, headed by Mrs. Lyons Smith, was elected at the Thursday evening meeting of the Catholic Women's league. Mrs. Ray Roach and Mrs. Owen Buchanan were named to report with her at the next meeting.

Plans were completed for the annual Easter cooked food sale to be held Saturday, April 8, with Mrs. Mollie Khan as chairman.

Program featured a paper on Mother Cabrini, given by Mrs. Lyons Smith.

HEYBURN WINS; OAKLEY, BUHL, PILOT CAGERS LOSE

Stimpson Rings up 23 Points as Panthers Smother New Plymouth

RUPERT, March 24—Coach Dean Croft's Heyburn Panthers put on a basketball display here last night that placed them alongside the Aberdeen Tigers as the favorites to win the state Class B tournament when they emerged from their opening game 48-25 victors over the New Plymouth Pilgrims.

* * * * * * * *

It was the most lopsided game of the four played in the opening day's bill that saw Glenns Ferry's Pilots, the Magic Valley's other representative, fall before Aberdeen, 51-37; Ammon trounce Payette, 45-29, and Soda Springs, the defending champion, just nose out Ucon, 34-32.

The Panthers will meet Soda Springs in the second game this evening after Aberdeen and Ammon tangle in the first at 8 p. m. In the first consolation round Glenns Ferry opposed Payette at 3 p. m., while an hour later Ucon and New Plymouth will be the opposing teams.

Never Extended

The Panthers never were extended by New Plymouth as they took a 9-3 first quarter lead, then a 21-7 advantage at the half and a 32-15 lead after three periods.

Dwaine Stimpson, Coach Croft's five-foot-nine center, showed that he was a match for the tall boys when he rang up 23 points on eight field goals and seven free throws although six-foot-six Kenneth Laubermilk was guarding him. Laubermilk got 14 points to lead his teammates.

Glenns Ferry was sadly off its game in losing to Aberdeen. Only early in the first quarter when the Pilots took a brief one-point lead was the result in doubt. Aberdeen led, 9-6, at the conclusion of the first quarter, increased its advantage to 22-12 at the half and was leading, 41-28, entering the final period.

The Tigers had put their six-foot-two-inch Murray Satterfield on display and he proved an even greater basketball player than had been reported. Although he fouled out shortly after the second half opened, he scored 21 points on nine field goals and three free throws.

Doboran Gets 11 Points

The Pilot team seemed unable to get started. Not until late in the fourth did their star, Joe Doboran, swing into action. He made five field goals and a free throw for 11 points. He was outscored by a teammate, Helkmap, who had a like number of field goals and two free throws.

Ammon had little trouble with Payette. The 1943 tournament runners-up led, 10-5, at the end of the first quarter and 18-11 at the half.

Soda Springs, whose only losers, three of them, were to Aberdeen had to make an uphill fight to win over Ucon. The latter team led, 8-6, after one quarter and 13-11 at the end of the half. The Cardinals caught the Grizzlies soon after the opening of the second half and led, 25-24, at the conclusion of the third period. They continued to lead until near the close of the game when Tracy of Ucon tied the score with a field goal. However, just before the final gun Boston, Soda Springs guard, won the game with a shot from near the center of the floor.

Capacity crowds witnessed both the afternoon and evening sessions of the tournament.

Reed's 29 Points Sink Hornets at Caldwell

CALDWELL, March 24 (AP) — Caldwell, Emmett, Rigby and Pocatello high schools bounded into the semi-finals of the southern Idaho class A tournament here Thursday by downing their respective opponents in opening games of the tourney.

Preston met Oakley today at 2 p. m. to open the consolation bracket games, followed by Buhl and Rexburg at 3 p. m. Rigby and Emmett will clash in the semi-finals today at 7:30 p. m., followed by Pocatello and Caldwell.

Caldwell rounded out the opening games last night by defeating Rexburg 44-33. In a slow game.

The Indians' 33-20 win over Buhl came easily, with Pocatello holding a strong lead throughout the game. Pocatello ended the first quarter with a 10-6 lead, and with the straight shooting of its center, Beem, opened the lead to 17-10 at the end of the half and 28-13 at the end of the third period.

Beem picked up 10 for the high score of the game, followed by Kell, Pocatello guard, and Sisson, Buhl center, with eight points apiece.

Rigby defeated Preston, 43 to 24, in an easy victory as the tournament opener, and Emmett beat out Oakley, 39 to 30, in the second game, which saw both teams fight furiously, the lead changing many times.

The Rigby Red Devils, coached by Seth Parmen, took a 5 to 3 lead at the end of the first quarter, widened it to 16-8 at the half, and stretched it to 32-15 at the end of the third period.

Oakley led Emmett by one point, 20 to 19, at half time, and the score was tied 25-25 at the end of the third quarter but the straight shooting of Reed, Emmett guard, pushed his team into the lead in the final period.

Reed accounted for 29 points with 12 field goals and five successful free throws. For Oakley, Elquist, a forward, amassed 17 points.

The game was fast all the way with good blocking and good shooting by both sides. Twelve personal fouls were called on Oakley players and six against Emmett.

ON THE SPORT FRONT

It took Murray Satterfield just 30 minutes at Rupert Thursday to make a believer out of Ye Olde Sport Scrivener. The Aberdeen center is no fable. He's as good as the tales seeping out of the eastern section of the state said he is—and better.

If the pudgy one ever saw a better basketball player five years have blotted that gent from this ancient word peddler's memory. In fact, that player probably never existed.

The 17-year-old, six-foot-two inch cager has got about everything in the way of basketball equipment that could be asked. The size is there and so is the speed. Combined with these are basketball sense and a shot that is a mere flip of the wrist.

Now Joe Doboran, the Glenns Ferry center who was assigned the job of guarding Satterfield in the tournament game at Rupert, is better than the average basketball player. But he was a toy in the hands of the Aberdeen lad. Once with Doboran guarding him closely, Satterfield rose high in the air and with that wrist-flip of his deposited the ball in the basket. Then another time YOSS saw him feint Doboran out of position and easily unmolested up to the basket for two points.

This typewriter tormentor went to Rupert especially to see Satterfield. He had heard many stories about him—how the Aberdeen lad averaged 22 points last season, rang up 30 in several games and was practically unstoppable. The pudgy one expected to see a tall lad with better than average shooting ability who parked himself under or near the basket and then waited for his team mates to feed him the ball.

But such wasn't the case. He didn't park himself under the basket. He was all over the floor—a fine rebounder and a crack dribbler. He didn't wait for his mates to feed him the ball. He made his own openings and then shot in for baskets. Shooting long or shooting short, the youngster was deadly accurate.

"You just can't stop him," Coach Bob Green of the Soda Springs Cardinals told Ye Olde Sport Scrivener, and Green ought to know because his quintet played Aberdeen four times during the season and lost on three of the occasions.

This story probably will give the Magic Valley basketball followers some idea how good Satterfield is. In the sub-district tournament, Aberdeen trailed American Falls by six points with only one minute between defeat and elimination. But in that time the Tiger center made three field goals to tie the score and had what would have been the winning two points in the air when the final gun sounded. But the referee refused to allow the two points. In an overtime period he then made a free throw to win the game.

Rupert is giving the Magic Valley a great basketball show. When you enter the door you are presented with a program — free — that tells you almost anything that you would want to know about the eight title contenders—the nicknames, their colors, their coaches, their managers, their records in both regular and tournament play and the height, age and year in school of each of the players. Then, too, there is a charted schedule which a fan can follow to the end of the tournament.

Principal Don M. Dafoe of the Rupert high school is the manager. He's constantly on the move, ministering to players and spectators. A band entertains between the periods. There are drills and tumbling exhibitions to delight the fans while a corps of Rupert students waits on the visiting players and sees to their comfort. Yessir, Rupert knows how to put on a show.

NOTES ON THE CAMPS

TROTSKY IN CAMP

FRENCH LICK, Ind., March 24 (AP)—First baseman Hal Trotsky and Guy Curtright, outfielder, joined the Chicago White Sox for spring training today, reducing the absentee list to Joe Haynes, a relief pitcher, the only holdout. The Sox engaged in a spirited workout in preparation for exhibition games against the Detroit Tigers Saturday and Sunday.

OSTERMUELLER SIGNS

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., March 24 (AP)—Pitcher Fred C. Ostermueller signed his Brooklyn contract today, while word was received that Lee Webber, last season the club's chief relief artist, was enroute to camp from his California home.

STEPHENS REPORTS

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., March 24 (AP)—Vernon Stephens, star shortstop of the Browns, took his first spring training camp workout today and apparently was in good condition after a winter working in a California shipyard and playing baseball two or three times a week.

Phillips Win to Enter Semi-Final

DENVER, March 24 (AP) — Phillips "66," defending champion from Bartlesville, Okla., rallied from behind to defeat Fircrest Dairy of Bellingham, Wash., 44-39 last night to enter the semi-final tomorrow night of the national A.A.U. basketball tournament against the same all-stars of Colorado Springs, Colo.

Fort Warren, Wyo., will play Denver Ambrose-Legion in the other semi-final.

A 43-foot field goal by Master Sgt. Jules Rivlin, Fort Warren, Wyo., 10 seconds before the final gun, tossed Hollywood 20th Century Fox out of the tournament, 46-43.

Dodds Will Endeavor to Lower 2-Mile Mark in Race Tonight

CLEVELAND, March 24 (AP)—After twice lowering the world's indoor mile record on successive week-ends, Gil Dodds, Boston's running divinity student, will cease the procedure long enough to take a crack at the two-mile mark in the Knights of Columbus meet here tonight.

Standout of the two-mile entries, Dodds will be out after Greg Rice's 8:51 world record for the distance, a mark established on the K. of C. boards at the arena last winter.

Dodds' best time for two miles is 8:53.7, which he turned in two years ago. Concentrating on the mile since then, he has galloped that distance in 4:09 or better nine times.

He lowered the mark to 4:07.3 in New York two weeks ago, and last week dropped it to 4:06.4 in Chicago.

The Nebraska farm boy says he always has felt the two-mile distance is his natural race, because he lacks the "finish drive" required in the mile. "I don't get tired," he told an interviewer. "My legs just won't carry me any faster."

Chief rivals for Dodds' efforts to whittle down the two-mile mark are expected to be Jim Rafferty, New York, who won the event at the New York K. of C. meet and the Millrose games recently; Jerry Thompson, Great Lakes, former national collegiate champion; Jimmy Wisner of Baltimore, and Lloyd Lochner, formerly of Oklahoma.

Coaches, Officials Meet in New York

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Lured by two national tournaments and the prospect of a good argument, some 60 or 70 college basketball coaches and an undetermined number of officials will gather here this week-end.

The tournaments are the national invitation event, which has reached the final stage with De Paul, Chicago, and St. John's, Brooklyn, due to meet Sunday, and the National Collegiate A. A. championship, which gets under way today with Dartmouth playing Colgate university and Ohio State facing Temple in the eastern semi-finals.

A total of 155,148 governmental units levy taxes and render public services in the United States.

Boxing Matches

CASTLEFORD, March 24 — The Castleford boxing team which has made an excellent record this season will match leather with the Gooding Senators in a 12-bout program here Saturday night.

The matches will be the last for both teams before the district tournament to be held in Jerome next week-end.

Tippy Larkin Kayoes Stolz

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP) — Tippy Larkin, Garfield puncher, scored a technical knockout over Allie Stolz, Newark, in the third round of an all-New Jersey 10-rounder last night in Madison Square garden. Larkin weighed 137; Stolz 134.

Stolz, after outboxing Larkin in the first two rounds, asked for it in the third stanza and got it.

As the came out, Stolz grinned at his taller, heavier foe and said: "Let's go." With that he stuck his chin out, and Larkin, operating on the "ask and thou shalt receive" premise, smacked him on the chin. Stolz reeled, but stayed up.

A minute later, with Stolz still weaving a bit, Larkin stuck his right through Allie's high-held guard to reach his chin again, and Stolz went down for a one-count. He came up groggy, and staggered into the ropes, where Larkin caught him on the jaw with another right, and Stolz was down for seven more.

He staggered to his feet, his eyes glassy, and his second hit him with a spongeful of cold water. Larkin hit him a minute later, and Stolz fell in his own corner. He was still down as the bell sounded when the count reached two.

AAA WEED CASH RATE ANNOUNCED

Rates of payment and 1944 practices in the weed control program for Twin Falls county were announced Friday by Walter Reese, county AAA chairman, as follows:

For each infested area cultivated, $10 will be paid by the local AAA office (not applicable to St. Johnswort, however). Ten cents per pound will be paid for sodium chloride used (not applicable to St. Johnswort), and the total cost will be paid for carbon bisulphide used.

Payments may be made for the control or eradication of seriously infected plots of Canadian thistle, bindweed (morning glory), Russian knapweed, leafy spurge, hoary cress (white top), perennial sow thistle, or St. Johnswort. Approval of the county committee is required, as approved methods must be followed and operations timely performed to insure satisfactory results.

This practice may be approved outside of organized weed control districts if the infestation is limited to a single farm, if proper weed control measures are being carried out on all adjacent infested farms and contiguous land or if the county committee determines there is little likelihood of reinfestation from adjacent farms or contiguous land.

PRICE CONTROLS URGED BY ECCLES

WASHINGTON, March 24 (AP)—Mariner S. Eccles, Ogden, chairman of the federal reserve system, appealed today for continuance of the administration's stabilization program until two years after the war "to maintain the public faith and the value of the dollar."

Eccles told the senate banking committee, which is considering legislation to extend price controls one year beyond June 30, that inflation "rarely gets out of hand during a war" but that the vast stores of pent-up spending which might be turned loose with peace "might well be fatal."

"The inflationary pressure will continue until a balanced budget is in prospect," he said in asking for continued authorization of government controls.

After mentioning the 10,000,000 men and women in the armed services, he said that if those in positions of responsibility failed to keep up the dollar's buying power, they will face a "dreadful retribution."

Eccles estimated that "inflationary pressure" on June 30, 1944, as measured by the demand deposits, savings currency and government securities held by individuals and business concerns (except life insurance companies and banks) would amount to $194,000,000,000.

This, he said, compared with $79,000,000,000 on June 30, 1941.

J. A. Journey Dies At Jerome Home

JEROME, March 24—J. A. Journey, 88, pioneer contractor, died at 6:15 a. m. today at his home in Jerome following an extended illness. He had lived here six years, coming from Gooding where he was janitor at the Gooding grade school for many of his later years.

Funeral services are pending word from relatives. The body rests at the Albertson funeral home, Buhl, and burial will be in Elmwood cemetery at Gooding beside the body of his wife.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. H. C. Egelus and Mrs. Sharon Albertson, both Jerome; four sons, Glen Journey, Seattle, Wash.; B. K. Journey, Eugene, Ore.; L. T. Journey, Ontario, Ore., and T. Ritchie, Tuttle, and 15 grandchildren.

Sheriff Goes to Get Jailbreaker

JEROME, March 24—Arnold Benbrook, about 41, who escaped from the Jerome jail in 1941, will be returned from Yakima, Wash., it was announced by Sheriff Lee S. Johnson, who said he was leaving today to get Benbrook.

Benbrook was one of four men who escaped jail together by fashioning a key to the door. The other three were apprehended. Benbrook was arrested at Yakima on a liquor charge, and investigation of his record revealed the jail break here.

Sheriff Johnson said Benbrook will face both a jail-breaking charge and the old charge of auto theft on which he was being held for investigation at the time of his escape.

FILER, March 24—A nephew and his uncle, both 17-year-olds, were enlisted in the navy at recruiting headquarters at Boise this week, according to an announcement from W. S. Sanders, Twin Falls navy recruiter.

They are Charles Edward Loudenslager and nephew Glenn Ross Williams. Both youths had been living at the home of Mrs. Ida Irene Hall, mother of young Williams and a sister of Loudenslager.

NEW YORK, March 24 (AP)—Stocks came back selectively in today's market, with rails, liquors and specialties in front, but buying timidity resulted in one of the slowest sessions of the month.

Commitments were reinstated in most cases because of the belief Thursday's technical reaction had served to correct a slightly overbought condition. Another batch of good earnings figures inspired bids for individual issues.

Transfers were around 900,000 shares.

Bonds were mixed with rail loans doing better.

THE "FUDDY-DUDDIES"
XI

Fighters had been crossing the Atlantic like bees on pogo sticks. The time had finally arrived for the staff officers at Maine headquarters to pack up their troubles and move on. The staffers, naturally, were going to fly across in P-38's, just to see as they facetiously remarked, whether the trip was actually feasible. In the fighters were Colonel Bruce, Grenert and Kelsey, and Captain Hough (former 2nd Lieutenant). Gen. Monk Hunter was to ride in the B-17 which led them. These pilots, considerably older than the youths who had gone before them, immediately named themselves the "Fuddy-Duddy" flight.

The Fuddy-Duddies with whoops of joy and a short streaking of points, shoved the throttles to the firewall at 2:10 p. m., and settled down at Labrador two hours and 50 minutes later.

Leaving the base on July 21 in good order, they ran into the inevitable weather half way across. Daily Strut II was so thick at one time the B-17 was climbing over it at about 7,000 feet. Joe began turning on range, and soon the plane lost contact with the others. Hough opened the throttles and climbed to 22,000 feet where he found the roof of the overcast. He turned the bearings and continued toward Greenland.

He had flown for about 30 minutes when another P-38 like Kelsey's came lunging up through the clouds directly in front of him. The overcast was breaking up and soon they spotted Bruce's 5,000 feet below them. After picking him up they saw a B-17 turning. It, the three Fuddy-Duddies discovered to their amazement that it was a different one from the Fortress they had started out with.

They tacked on to it, nevertheless, and in another half-hour they saw another B-17 in the distance. They followed it in to Bluie.

The Fuddy-Duddies remained overnight in Greenland, taking off at 1:30 p. m. the next afternoon. Over the frightening, brilliant expanse of thin ice cap, wearing special amber glasses for protection against the glare, they droned off toward Iceland.

They were 30 degrees off course when the reached Greenland's east coast. Hough noted with some alarm. He had developed the use of a special gyrocompass to aid in navigation if a fighter became separated from the leader, and he was making his own navigational conclusions as he flew. Hough radioed the B-17 navigator about the course, but the navigator believed that Hough's compass was wrong.

For the next hour they argued over the course, which by the time Hough estimated was 35 degrees off course. Breaking flight discipline, he finally told the B-17 navigator that he was going to leave the flight and strike out for Iceland by himself.

Hough was saying goodby to the flight when the B-17 radio operator broke in. He had contacted Iceland, and the Fortress was making the necessary 35 degree change in course which Hough had insisted was necessary. All the planes eventually made landfall at the Iceland base without further incident.

* * *

General Hunter gave a dinner for his flight at Reykjavik's Borg hotel.

They took off for the United Kingdom the next morning, July 26. Another pilot had flown in in the meantime and joined the flight.

The last leg of the long flight from Maine to England went more smoothly, but it was not altogether dull. The nearness of the enemy was brought very forcibly to mind. Several pilots had reported seeing German U-Boats, and the Fuddy-Duddies saw with their own eyes that the aliment had not been over-exercising their imaginations. They spotted a nazi submarine on the surface between Iceland and Stornoway, Scotland, but their mission was to deliver fighters, not risk them against submarine and anti-aircraft fire just for the pleasure of strafing, so they proceeded on their course.

The rolling green hills of the United Kingdom were a very welcome sight after our wanderings, and it was with a sigh of relief that we turned in that evening just eight weeks to the day from our arrival at Manchester (pronounced "Manchester") base in New Hampshire," wrote one of the pilots.

NEXT: "The 38's are here!"

Railway Sued in Death of Heifers

The death of three Hereford heifers assertedly struck by a railroad locomotive last Dec. 29 is the basis of a probate court suit filed by the Hunt Land and Investment company, Inc., against the Union Pacific Railroad company.

The petition charges that the railroad failed "to keep and maintain its fences along the right of way in proper repair . . but allowed the same to become in such a condition as to permit livestock to escape and stray from adjoining lands and to come upon the right of way."

The three heifers in question were said to be about one year old and to weigh about 500 pounds each. Two were killed when struck by the locomotive, the petition states, and the third was injured so severely that it had to be killed. Scene of the accident was about four miles east of Buhl.

The plaintiff asks judgment for $195 as the value of the animals; attorney fees and costs of the suit.

Attorneys for the plaintiff are Harry Povey and Rayborn and Rayborn. Attorney for the railroad is Frank L. Stephan.

CLUE TO SLAYER OF YOUTH SOUGHT

BOISE, March 24 (U.P.)—Boise peace officers and Prosecutor Oliver Koelsch today continued their interviews with close associates of Franklin King, 15, in an attempt to find a clue leading to identity of his murderer.

The youth's body was found yesterday in the basement of the partly completed Idaho historical museum. His head had been crushed with a heavy object, and Koelsch said he was the victim of assault by a sex pervert.

Young King has 10 brothers and sisters, the oldest, Mrs. Vida May Branscum, 19, and the youngest, a five-months-old baby.

Coroner William McBratney said a medical examination examination of the body will be made and an inquest withheld pending the securing of additional evidence.

The youth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. King, Boise. He attended school yesterday and was seen as late as 7 p. m. Wednesday night, Koelsch said.

Mrs. King said she went to Nampa Wednesday to visit relatives and was in Nampa when she learned of her son's death. She said the father was in Denver seeking employment. He formerly worked as a railroad switchman at Pocatello.

Sheriff's Auto Hit As He Slows Down To Offer His Help

JEROME, March 24—Sheriff Lee Johnson's helpful instincts brought him trouble yesterday, when his car was struck from the rear by a truck as he slowed to offer assistance to a motorist with tire trouble.

Sheriff Johnson was driving into Hazelton on highway 25 when he saw the other motorist stopped about a mile west of Hazelton. When he slowed his car it was struck by a truck loaded with potatoes and driven by E. H. Larne. Owner is Fred Rutherford. Both are of Twin Falls.

State Policeman W. L. Chancey estimated the damage to Sheriff Johnson's car at approximately $275.

Colonel Salutes Buhl From Sky

BUHL, March 24—Lieut.-Col. W. E. Brennan, in a salute to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brennan of the Buhl Floral company, flew over town Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. in the first of two planes.

They circled the town twice, dipping over the greenhouse and the Brennan home at the outskirts of the city.

Colonel Brennan, an inspector in the U. S. army, was en route from Spokane, Wash., where he had closed up his present offices, to Colorado Springs, Colo., his base of operations. He expects reassignment to an eastern base in the near future.

KWAJALEIN MADE HUGE YANK BASE

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN

KWAJALEIN ISLAND, March 1 (Delayed) (AP)—To come back to Kwajalein after the battle is to come back to a few acres of soil already as American as hot dogs.

It was Japanese a little more than three weeks ago. The stench of its dead two weeks ago was unbearable. Miserable natives and the stubborn enemy still lie in hospitals recovering from the soul and body shocking experience of being days without food and water among its smoking ghosts of trees. But now there is change.

There is drama in the war in the Pacific, although it differs from the more massive actions of Europe and Russia.

Battles Are Brief

There is the drama of long movements here — convoys that go thousands of miles, ships that stay at sea for weeks. The battles are brief, earth-shaking affairs with tons of explosives and thousands of men concentrated on a tiny beach. And the things that follow the fleets and come after the battles.

In this drama, the bulldozer is the principal actor a hero with a halo of dust, a romantic juvenile in the aloof and hollow tradition. The army engineers are the men who shift the scenes.

Kwajalein, when the battle was over, was a wasteland. Fires smouldered in the formless ruins of what had been Japanese buildings. Bodies were everywhere — more than 4,000 Japanese.

Trunks and fronds of shattered palms formed an impassable jungle on the ground. There were dud shells and bombs, smoking Japanese ammunition dumps, ruined gear, thousands upon thousands of sheets of paper scattered everywhere—Japanese military forms. Japanese mosquito netting lay in green piles and Japanese steel frames hung at crazy angles from the remains of roofs.

Still Wreckage

Today there are still signs. Japanese cannon, wrecked where they waited—unfired—in their permanent emplacements; a few wrecked boats in the lagoon.

But where there was a short, unfinished runway there is a huge modern airport. Where there were paths, there is a network of military roads.

Everywhere there is food and ammunition. The Japanese never were able to collect here a fraction of the battle necessities—food, bombs, shells, ammunition, water — which American troops moved in during the first two weeks of our occupation. More dirt has been moved by the bulldozers in two weeks than Japanese shovels touched in a quarter-century.

Piers have gone up where no piers were. Tents surround the high stumps of the palms. American prefabricated buildings occupy some of the sites of ruined Japanese structures.

Work Never Stopped

The details of this building of an American base on former Japanese soil are legion—fly-proof latrines, which the Japs never had; screened kitchens; the draining of swamps among the palms; the filling of thousands of caves in which Jap snipers lived—and died.

This work never has stopped, night or day, since the battle ended. It goes on now, with a continuous rumbling of trucks and bulldozers, the sound of the hammer replacing the familiar snap of rifles.

War Labor Board Given Truck Dispute After Boise Meetings

BOISE, March 24 (AP)—The seven-day old dispute between the AFL teamsters' union and Idaho's four major motor freightlines today was in hands of the war labor board and the national labor relations board.

The operators and the union failed to come to an agreement after conference lasting nearly 24 continuous hours and the army recommended the dispute be certified to the WLB, while the union filed a formal complaint with the NLRB charging the operators with unfair practices.

Maj. Clifford Ferguson, transportation officer, said he had "made recommendation to Washington that will assure speedy settlement of this dispute."

Louis N. Callister, Salt Lake City attorney, representing the four lines, said Ferguson had recommended certification to the WLB.

"We are satisfied," said Callister. "We wanted to arbitrate, but the union wouldn't do it."

John F. Hedrick, Seattle, attorney for the NLRB, said the union had filed a complaint alleging that dismissal of three truckline employes for failure to pick up merchandise at a local non-union transfer depot — the act that resulted in a walkout of all drivers and warehousemen — was in violation of the national labor act.

Hedrick said he would investigate the union's charges and make a recommendation later from his Seattle office.

GOODING C. OF C. EYES YOUTH AID

GOODING, March 24—Continuation of the community canning center and an enlarged youth activities program for the summer months were topics under discussion when committee members of the commerce and industry and civic affairs of the Gooding Chamber of Commerce met at the Lincoln hotel.

Present for the meeting were M. H. Metz, chairman of the commerce and industry committee; E. C. Jorgensen, head of the civic affairs committee; Chamber President S. L. Sullivan, and M. W. Tate, Leigh Ingersoll and Freeman Frost.

More for Girls

A plan sponsored by the local Parent-Teacher association for an enlarged youth activities program to include girls to a greater degree was presented for study of the group by Superintendent Tate. Previously the schools and the city council have combined to provide a summer program, principally for boys.

The city has granted a fund of $600 for this recreation project, about half of which has been spent. The P. T. A. is proposing to raise an additional $250 to enlarge the program to enable including weekly "activity evenings" featuring dancing and games.

Named Chairman

E. C. Jorgensen was appointed by President Sullivan to carry on the work. It was proposed that four local civic organizations donate the required $250. They would be the Rotary, Lions and Sorosis clubs, with the Chamber of Commerce providing the greater part of the money. The plan is to be presented to the clubs soon.

Mr. Ingersoll, high school Smith-Hughes instructor who supervised the development and operation of the canning center last year, reviewed the history and future prospects of the community cooperative center. The center handled about 40,000 No. 2½ cans, purchased by the individuals at five cents per can last year. Funds thus received were used to defray the costs incurred by the unit.

Mr. Ingersoll stated that last year the state paid the salaries of supervisors, janitor and building rent. This year, however, most of the cost will have to be paid locally, necessitating an increase in the can charge to seven cents each. He said that Jerome and Gooding may combine to purchase an entire carload of cans in order to get a more advantageous price.

MONTY SEES END OF WAR IN 1945

LONDON, March 24 (AP)—Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of British invasion armies, said today that the "promised land" of peace "now is not so far off," although the end of the European war may not come until 1945.

Speaking at a "salute the soldier" luncheon at Mansion house, Montgomery called upon the whole nation to back the armed forces in the critical months to come so that Britain would be worthy of the prayer:

"Let God arise and let His enemies be scattered."

Not Far off

"The promised land is not now so far off," he said. "If necessary, we have got to hazard all and give our lives that others may enjoy it."

He called the forthcoming battle of Germany "the biggest tug-o-war the world ever has seen."

"How long will the pull last?" he asked. "No one can say for certain. It may last a year and may take longer, but it will be a magnificent party and we shall win . . .

Together, the whole empire will see this thing through to the end. It's a prayer fob for proper men."

Montgomery acknowledged that the allies had lost "the first few pulls," but added that they now were leading.

"If we win this pull," he said, "we win the match. If any of us should fail or let go of the rope, or fall off the rope, then we lose the match."

Inspects Troops

He revealed that he had just returned from an inspection of the ground forces he will lead across the water to Europe and found them in "good trim." When the forces go into action, he said, they will prove the best Britain ever has had.

"If tough, well-trained troops are given the proper weapons, he said, "there is nothing you cannot do—nothing."

"It must forever redound to our shame that we sent our soldiers into this most modern war with weapons and equipment that were quite inadequate," the veteran of Dunkirk said. "We have only ourselves to blame for disasters that early overtook us in the field. Surely we must never let this happen again, nor will we."

VARIED PROGRAM BY EVANGELISTS

Declaring that he came to Twin Falls with "just one purpose in view — to preach the gospel of Christ as I find it in my Bible" youthful Evangelist Raymond L. Alber will conduct the second in a four-week series of evangelistic meetings at 8 p. m. today at the First Christian church.

Mr. Alber and his party opened the series Thursday. The party includes Mrs. Alber, children's worker, and Howard T. House, musician and artist.

The Rev. Mark C. Cronenberger, pastor of the church, said the initial turnout was excellent. He termed the series "different from the generally accepted idea of the so-called revival meeting." Special features include music, crayon and rag pictures, pantomimes and other presentations. The music includes both vocal and instrumental with piano, soloron and ukra-harp.

Immediately after school today the boys and girls in elementary grades convened for a Booster club in charge of Mrs. Alber. The club will have a program including Bible study, songs, stories, pictures and magic.
